TWO FORMER GREENJACKETS GET CALL TO THE SHOW

Since the GreenJackets became an affiliate of the Atlanta Braves prior to the 2021 season, a handful of prospects have made their way from Augusta to the MLB, either with the Braves or across other organizations. That list grew this month, with a pair of pitchers from the 2023 GreenJackets team getting the call to the big league club and joining Atlanta.

Spencer Schwellenbach became the first alumnus from the 2023 GreenJackets squad to get the call up to Atlanta on May 29th, bypassing AAA Gwinnett entirely and going from AA Mississippi to the big leagues. The right-hander out of the University of Nebraska was drafted back in 2021, but Tommy John Surgery kept him on the shelf through all of '21 and '22. Tasked with beginning his career in Augusta in 2023, Schwellenbach quickly asserted himself as one of the premier pitchers in the Carolina League. The righty posted a 2.63 ERA in 13 starts with the 'Jackets, limiting hard contact well and improving consistently as the year went on. Schwellenbach would end 2023 with 3 starts in Rome, the same spot he started 2024 before a quick promotion to Mississippi and an even quicker call to MLB.

Schwellenbach would not remain the lone former GreenJacket in Atlanta's rotation for long, as Hurston Waldrep received a promotion to the Braves on June 9th to give additional rest to a taxed set of starters. While Schwellenbach's climb to the top was methodical and delayed by injury, Waldrep's rise was positively meteoric. The Georgia native was drafted by his childhood favorite team in the 1st round of the 2023 draft in July, and got the call 11 months later after setting Braves' affiliates ablaze at every level.

Waldrep would make just one start in Augusta, striking out 8 hitters in 3 innings and quickly proving that he was too advanced for the Carolina League. The former Florida Gator would make a complete tour of the system, seeing at least one appearance in Rome, Mississippi, and Gwinnett before the 2023 season came to a close. Waldrep would begin 2024 in Mississippi and was fantastic despite low run support, jumping up to Gwinnett for just one final start before he was sent upward once again to debut for the team he cheered for as a kid.

In an odd turn of events, both Schwellenbach and Waldrep made their debuts against the Washington Nationals, albeit in different series against the divisional rivals. With Atlanta hosting what has turned into an open audition for the 5th starter slot in the rotation, both Waldrep and Schwellenbach have the opportunity to claim a legitimate role with a playoff-caliber club early into their careers. With both being so young and having such high potential, it's clear the ceiling of their careers is far from reached. But for now, having made their debuts in Major League Baseball, they become the latest in an ever-growing line of former GreenJackets to etch their names into MLB's history books.
