HEY NOW, YOU'RE AN ALL-STAR

BY NATHAN STRAUSS

When Spencer Schwellenbach got pulled aside one day after practice by Green-Jackets manager Cody Gabella, he didn't know what was coming. He was blindsided by the private and secretive nature of the conversation. Was it good news coming, or bad?

"You're heading to Seattle, Spencer," informed the Augusta skipper. Schwellenbach, just 13 games into his professional career, was selected to be the Braves representative at the SiriusXM All-Star Futures Game, the premier prospect competition that takes place each MLB All-Star weekend which features dozens of baseball's top prospects.

"I was like, holy cow... that's definitely not what I thought you were going to say," says Schwellenbach with a smile when recounting how he was told about this opportunity. "It's pretty cool to hear. Just to be mentioned and honored with this invitation is really special to me."

Schwellenbach was Augusta's opening day starter this year, on a day in which the Michigander made his professional debut. After being selected in the second round of the 2021 MLB Draft from Nebraska, Schwellenbach underwent surgery on his pitching arm, missing all of his post-draft summer and the entire 2022 campaign.

After winning the John Olerud Two-Way Player of the Year award his final year with the Cornhuskers, Schwellenbach has transitioned seamlessly to a full-time starting pitcher role. “My first start was a lot different than my starts now, preparation wise. I feel a lot more confident in what I need to do to get ready. It’s a lot easier to throw when you have 10 plus starts under your belt.”

At the time of Schwellenbach’s departure to Seattle, he boasted a record of 4-2, an ERA of 2.63, and a stellar WHIP of 1.15. Most impressive are his three quality starts - games where a pitcher goes six or more innings and surrenders three or fewer runs. In college, Schwellenbach had played most games as a shortstop, while also serving as the Cornhuskers’ closer in the 2021 season. His transition to starter has been a seamless one.

As far as his plans for how he’ll approach the Futures Game itself? “In college, when I was a closer, I would just throw the ball as hard as I could to get people out...it’s going to be something like that again,” quips Schwellenbach, preparing for what will likely amount to just a handful of batters that he will face given the showcase-like style of the game itself. From shortstop to closer to starter, Schwellenbach has perpetually excelled. Being named to the Futures Game is just one of the many honors that this prospect hopes to collect.
