2021 BRAVES DRAFT RECAP

By: Rylan Kobre

The 2021 MLB Draft has come to a close and the Braves era at SRP Park may include some of those new faces. Here's a breakdown of four picks by the Braves this year. You'll be ready to go in case they come to North Augusta.

Ryan Cusick

After the Braves selected Wake Forest left-hander Jared Shuster in the first round of the 2020 Draft, they went with another Demon Deacon in 2021. Cusick towers over people at 6'6", 235 lbs. He had 108 strikeouts in just 70 innings this year for Wake Forest. His fastball has been clocked as high as 101 miles-per-hour.

Spencer Swellenbach

The John Olerud Two-Way Player of the Year winner in 2021 went to the Braves in the second round. Spencer Swellenbach has a chance to be another power arm on the mound. He's been clocked at 99 miles-per-hour. The Braves like him at a shortstop but expect Swellenbach to be on the mound long-term.

Luke Waddell

Waddell played his college baseball just down the road at Georgia Tech and had a career batting average of .308. This season, he hit eight home runs and struck out just 16 times in 230 at-bats. Waddell could see time at second base as well as shortstop.

E-Z-GO® and Jacobsen® are proud to support the Augusta GreenJackets and provide vehicles and equipment to help make every gameday at SRP Park a great one!

©2021 Textron Specialized Vehicles Inc.

Tyler Tolve

We had to highlight the Marietta, GA native in our draft recap. Tolve hit .331 in 80 collegiate games with eight home runs, including seven this past season. His defensive skills were on full display as he committed only three errors. If Tolve ends up playing in North Augusta, he will only have to make a three-hour drive down from Marietta.

SHEPHERD STAYING CLOSE TO HOME

By: Rylan Kobre

Cam Shepherd and his teammates at the University of Georgia walked into SRP Park on April 11, 2018. The eventual Ballpark of the Year in Minor League Baseball was opening its gates for the first time, and Shepherd was about to play in the first game at SRP Park.

"I remember walking up and they were taking the plastic wrapping off the L-screen. It was brand new," Shepherd said.

Fast forward to 2021 and Shepherd is now a member of the Atlanta Braves organization hoping to someday play baseball at Truist Park in Atlanta. Right now though, it's not bad playing baseball so close to home in a GreenJackets uniform.

"It's pretty cool being in Augusta because it's so close to my house," Shepherd said. "It's a three-hour drive, so my family can come up anytime they have time to watch me play which is pretty awesome."

The GreenJackets middle infielder had a tremendous four seasons at Georgia. He hit .268 and started at shortstop from the first time he stepped on campus in Athens.

Shepherd was drafted out of high school by the Red Sox in the 29th round. Then again by Tampa Bay in 2019. But he wanted to return to Georgia for his senior season and a chance to play in the College World Series.

Unfortunately, it was cut short due to the pandemic.

"We were on the way to play Florida. And we were on the bus," Shepherd said. "We were about four hours into the trip and the bus turned around and everyone was looking around saying 'what's going on?' Before we got back to Athens it was all over Twitter that the season was cancelled."

IE IN FIRST PROFESSIONAL SEASON

Shepherd contemplated his return to Georgia, but when teams came calling, he made the decision to turn pro for the team he grew up rooting for. Shepherd signed with the Braves last summer and was assigned to Augusta to start the season.

The Duluth, GA native is enjoying his season in professional baseball. It's not bad having Dawgs fans around either.

“Going to the University of Georgia, there’s always people in the stands saying ‘Go Dawgs’, which is pretty cool,” Shepherd said. “There’s people that are Georgia fans all over the place. It’s pretty cool to be close to home and be familiar with SRP Park and playing there while I was at Georgia.”
