NEWS AND NOTES
ONLY IN MILB: Infielder Ethan Murray earned a handful of firsts on Friday night. He delivered the first walk-off hit of his professional career with a single in the bottom of the 11th inning to score Brock Wilken and give Nashville their second walk-off win of the season. On any other night, that would be the story in itself. However, Friday night was not just any other night. Murray came to the plate in the bottom of the 11th after having just pitched a scoreless top of the 11th after playing the first 10 innings of the game at third base. It also just so happened to be the first pitching appearance of his minor league career, and he tossed a clean sheet in his mound debut, working around a leadoff walk to strand two runners in scoring position. His first career walk-off hit made him the pitcher of record, and his bat earned himself the first win of his professional career. LIKE THIS OR LIKE PRATT: Cooper Pratt swatted his third home run of the season and second in the last week with a solo shot in the sixth inning Friday night. The Brewers no. 4-rated prospect is hitting .300 (9-for-30) with two home runs, three doubles, and has eight RBI over his last seven games since May 8th. After sitting at a season-low .156 AVG (10-for-64) with a double and three RBI through April 23 and his first 16 games of the season, Pratt has heated	up, hitting .286 (20-for-70) with nine extra-base hits (4 2B, 2 3B, 3 HR) and 14 RBI over his last 19 games. Friday night was his ninth multi-hit game of the season and his seventh in his last 19 games. RESPECTFULLY, OF COURSE: Another day, another appearance without allowing an earned run for Brewers no. 28-rated prospect Craig Yoho. The right-hander worked his seventh consecutive appearance and ninth overall in 10 games with a little help from Junior Fernandez, who erased both hits allowed by Yoho in the top of the 10th inning with an inning-ending double play. Since making his professional debut in 2023, Yoho owns the best ERA in the minor leagues (1.20) for any pitcher with 100+ appearances. The next closest is Zach Agnos, who posted a 1.77 ERA in 102 MiLB games over the same span. You would have to lower the number of appearances to 27+ to find a pitcher with a lower ERA than Yoho. Brock Stewart, who is currently in the Dodgers organization, owns a 1.03 ERA over his last 27 appearances in the minor leagues since the start of 2023. The 2.1 IP worked by Yoho were the second-most in his 104 career minor league games and helped to set a new single-game high in Triple-A. He set his career-high for IP with 3.0 IP on May 7, 2024, with High-A Wisconsin. Friday night was his	60th game without allowing an earned run in 67 total appearances with Nashville since making his Triple-A debut on August 9, 2024. GIVE ME THEM DIGITS: The Sounds earned their first extra-innings win of the season, the first win of the year when tied/trailing after the eighth inning, the second walk-off win, 16th home win, third series win, and earned the fifth straight win to match the longest winning streak of the season so far. Nashville's last extra-innings win before Friday night came on September 7, 2025, at Norfolk. After tying the game at 2-2 in the bottom of the eighth on Cooper Pratt's second RBI of the night, the team is now 1-17 on the season when either tied or trailing after the eighth inning. Ethan Murray joins Jett Williams as walk-off heroes for Nashville this season. Nashville owns the series win over Iowa after capturing their fifth straight win overall including each of the first four games this homestand. The five straight wins are tied for the most consecutive wins this season after also doing so April 14-18 vs. Worcester. Nashville's 16 wins at home are tied for the most in the minor leagues this season with Double-A Richmond (16-2), High-A Bowling Green (16-5), and Low-A Eugene (16-5).
