MAY RECAP

BY NATHAN STRAUSS

The month of May for Augusta came to a close in Charleston, South Carolina, and as the calendar flipped from May to June it marked the close of one of the best months in recent GreenJackets history.

The GreenJackets were a little slow to start the year, going 7-13 in the opening month of April. They exited April close to the bottom of the standings and statistics alike, with an offense that was floundering despite good pitching keeping them in games. However, Augusta opened May on the road in Kannapolis to take on the Cannon Ballers, and it was instantly clear that the switch had been flipped. In the first game of the month, the GreenJackets scored a season-high 11 runs, including six in the tenth inning, marking a comeback win that would set the tone. The GreenJackets would take five of the six games from Kannapolis, hitting seven homers in the six days, moving them to just two games below .500.

The next week, Augusta returned to SRP Park to take on the Charleston RiverDogs, and once again started positively. After a blowout win on the first day of the series, the GreenJackets notched their first walk-off win of the year in game two, with Jeremy Celedonio punching an RBI single to win it in the tenth. The GreenJackets would conclude the series against Charleston with a Mother's Day win to secure the series split, hitting eight more homers in the six days. Ethan Workinger recorded a base hit in 16 consecutive games over the first two and a half weeks of the month, a record that still stands as the longest hit streak in the league this season.

After the first two series, Augusta once again went on the road to Myrtle Beach, where they would play seven games in six days. The bats were once again on fire, as the GreenJackets won three of the first four games in the series. Augusta would come away with the series win, picking up the victory in the final game after the teams battled through a number of rain delays.

Following their trip to the coast, the GreenJackets headed home to take on Kannapolis once again. After a loss to begin the series, Augusta ripped off three straight wins to surpass the .500 mark for the first time in 50 days. David McCabe crushed four home runs in three days, winning the Carolina League player of the week award, as the GreenJackets took four of the six games in their final home series of the month. They'd stay hot, rolling into Charleston to win their games on the 30th and 31st, closing out the month with a 18-9 record and their third winning streak of three or more games over the course of May.

The GreenJackets recorded the most wins in the entire Carolina League in the month of May, also rocketing up the stats leaderboards. Last month, Augusta ranked 1st in the league in OPS (.756), 1st in runs (138), 1st in home runs (27, 9 more than the next closest team), 1st in slugging, 2nd in walks, and 4th in batting average. Pitching wise, the GreenJackets are also second in team WHIP (1.22), third in batting average against (.219), 3rd in strikeouts, and the fewest walks allowed per nine innings.

The GreenJackets began May in fifth place, and ended it in second. They'll try to stay hot this June!
