TODAY'S GAME: With both team's looking to take a series lead in the opener today, Mark Leiter Jr. will take the ball for Iowa against Jake Woodford for Memphis. Leiter Jr. is 0-2 with a 7.04 ERA in two starts for the I-Cubs, with his last start coming on May 4 against St. Paul. Around two starts with Iowa, the righty has also made three starts and two relief appearances for Chicago this season, going 0-1 with a 6.57 ERA over that span. Woodford is set to make just his second start for Memphis, after starting the year with St. Louis and making seven relief appearances for the Cardinals. He was 1-0 with a 2.08 ERA in seven games with St. Louis, allowing three earned on 11 hits over 13.0 innings pitched. In his first start with the Redbirds on Wednesday, the righty spun three innings of two-run ball, surrendering the two runs on four hits and two walks.

BACK TO THE BULLPEN: Matt Dermody was originally slated to start on Sunday, but had to adjust after Alec Mills was handed the ball instead as he resumed his Major League rehab assignment. The lefty didn't seem bothered by the change, and took over for Mills in the third inning to toss 3.2 innings of relief. The outing was Dermody's fourth out of the bullpen this season, but his first since April 23. Prior to Sunday's game, he had made four straight starts. Despite the switch, Dermody held the Clippers to one run on five hits and a walk, which lowered his ERA to 4.11 (16ER/35.0IP) on the season overall, and 2.38 (3ER/11.1IP) when pitching out of the bullpen.

SHORT WORK: Alec Mills took the mound for the first time in nearly a month on Sunday for the second start of his Major League rehab assignment. Mills, who had not pitched since April 23 in Louisville, was limited to 2.1 innings in the outing. That effort marked the shortest start Iowa had received since May 7, when James Bourque went 1.2 frames in a spot start. Though Mills allowed only one run and ended up with no decision, the I-Cubs' eventual loss continued a trend of trouble after short starts. So far this season, when Iowa's starter has pitched at least four innings, the team has gone on to a 19-9 record. When their starter has completed less than four innings, however, they've ended up with a 3-10 mark. The I-Cubs have received just three starts longer than five innings, and none longer than 5.2.

A CHUNK OF THE OFFENSE: Catcher P.J. Higgins got his contract selected by Chicago on Sunday, going 1-for-3 with a three-RBI triple in his first game of the year with the Cubs. Prior to his contract getting selected, the catcher was raking for Iowa. In his last five games with the I-Cubs, Higgins was hitting .750 (12-for-16) with four doubles, eight runs batted in and one walk compared to one strikeout. His last game was on Friday, a 7-3 victory for Iowa. In his last three games with the team, they won 8-1, 8-2 and 7-3, with Higgins driving in 30% (7-of-23) of their runs scored. Since Higgins left the lineup, Iowa has produced just four runs over their last two games. They scored two runs on three hits on Saturday followed by two runs on seven hits in their 5-2 loss on Sunday.

QUITE THE RIVALRY: Iowa and Memphis will meet for the first time since 2019, when the I-Cubs went 9-7 against the Redbirds. They were 6-2 at home while going 3-5 here at AutoZone Park. The two teams install the Triple-A version of the Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals rivalry, having playing 318 total games against each other from 1998 to 2019.

NELSON FOR TWO: Nelson Maldonado and Nelson Velazquez are the only two players with hitting streaks of two or more games on Iowa's active roster, each with hits in two straight games. Maldonado has been on a cold streak entering the series against the Redbirds, hitting .133 (2-for-15) over his last four games. However, he is 1-for-4 in each of his last two games, looking to turn a corner against Memphis. In all, the first basemen is hitting .241 (20-for-83) with seven doubles, a home run and 14 runs batted in over 21 games with the I-Cubs. Velazquez was responsible for all of Iowa's offense on Saturday, clubbing a two-run blast in the bottom of the fourth inning. The home run marked the second of his Triple-A career and 11th of the season. The outfielder hit nine in 22 games with Double-A Tennessee to start the year after hitting eight in 34 games with the Smokies last season. On Sunday, he again went 1-for-4, extending his hitting streak to two games, tied for his longest streak with Iowa.

IT'S BEEN A MINUTE: Mark Leiter Jr. will take the ball for Iowa today, marking his first start since May 4 against the St. Paul Saints. In that outing, the righty allowed five earned runs on four hits and two walks over 3.2 innings pitched. He struck out seven batters, but surrendered two home runs to give him his second loss with the I-Cubs. Since that start, he pitched two innings of scoreless relief for Chicago on May 17 against Pittsburgh. The 31-year-old will be making his third separate stint with Iowa already after starting the year here before getting his contract selected on April 16 after just one start for Iowa. He was optioned on April 30 and recalled on May 11 before being optioned on May 18.

AGAINST MEMPHIS: Iowa and Memphis are set to square-off for the first time since 2019, playing the first of 12 games between the two teams. This will be the only six-game series the two teams play at AutoZone Park this year and they will also meet for six at Principal Park from September 13-18. Iowa enters today's game exactly 30 games below .500 all-time against Memphis, at 144-174. They are 90-70 all-time at home against the Redbirds while going just 50-104 on the road. In 2019, they went 3-5 here at AutoZone Park.

SHORT HOPS: Carlos Sepulveda started at shortstop for Iowa on Sunday, marking the fourth different player to start at shortstop for the I-Cubs this season...Tyler Payne notched his first multi-RBI game of the season on Sunday, driving in both of Iowa's runs...three extra-base hits occurred in Iowa's game against Columbus on Sunday, including one triple from each team and a double from Columbus, neither team hit a long ball in the 5-2 game.

#25 MARK LEITER JR. (0-2, 7.04)

Height: 6-0 | Weight: 210 | Throws: Right | Bats: Right | Born: March 13, 1991 | Age: 31 | Birthplace: Fort Lauderdale, FL

VS. MEMPHIS:
1G, 0-0, 2.25 ERA, 4.0 IP, 4H, 1R, 1ER, 1HR, 1BB, 3K

Mark Leiter Jr. returns to the Iowa rotation tonight in his first appearance since being optioned from Chicago. The righty has gone 0-2 in two starts for the I-Cubs this season between two stints with the big league club, where he pitched out of both the rotation and the bullpen. He'll make his second career start against the Redbirds today in his first start since May 4 of this year.

QUICK HITS: Leiter Jr. went 3-0 in three starts against Iowa last season, allowing just one run on nine hits over 17.0 innings...he logged a career-high 14 strikeouts against the I-Cubs on September 10, 2021...the righty has thrown in 52 MLB games including 14 total starts...he was claimed off waivers by Toronto in 2018, but missed the entire 2019 season due to injury and elected free agency after the 2019 season.

LAST TIME OUT: Leiter Jr.'s last outing came out of Chicago's bullpen on Tuesday against Pittsburgh. He finished off the game for the Cubs, completing the eighth and ninth innings on just 13 total pitches. He allowed a leadoff single in his first inning of work, but sent down the next five men in order to lock down a victory for Chicago.

AGAINST MEMPHIS: Leiter Jr. has faced Memphis once before in his career. He met the Redbirds in 2021 while pitching for Triple-A Toledo and completed four innings in a start. He limited Memphis to one run on four hits and a walk and struck out four batters, but left with no decision.

2022: Began the season with Iowa, but made just one start before having his contract selected by Chicago...made three starts in four appearances for the Cubs, going 0-1 with a 7.84 ERA (9ER/10.1IP)...tied his career high for a single outing with four walks against Colorado on April 16...returned to Iowa on May 4 for one start before heading back to Chicago, where he pitched two innings of relief on May 17

2021: In his first season since 2018, Leiter Jr. went 10-8 in 25 games (19 starts) between Double-A Erie and Triple-A Toledo in Detroit's system. In 17 games for the Mud Hens, the righty went 8-4 with a 3.34 ERA, striking out 110 batters compared to 23 walks.

2018: Leiter Jr. played in his last MLB action in 2018, making eight appearances for Toronto and 12 for Philadelphia, all in relief. He also made 23 relief appearances between High-A Clearwater and Triple-A Lehigh Valley.

CAREER NOTES: Was drafted in the 22nd round of the 2013 draft by the Philadelphia Phillies...made his MLB debut on April 28, 2017, with Philadelphia against the Los Angeles Dodgers.

BACKGROUND: Cousin of Jack Leiter, nephew of Al Leiter, son of Mark Leiter...went to Toms River North High School in New Jersey before attending the New Jersey Institute of Technology for three seasons...one of just two players (Ed Charlton) to be drafted out of NJIT.
