WHAT TO KNOW FOR THE 2024 MLB DRAFT

For some, there's no more exciting day (besides Opening Day of course) in the summer season than the MLB Draft. Every team has reason for optimism and egregiously high expectations as their favorite club's farm system is flushed with fresh faces. With that in mind, it's only right that we review what to expect from this weekend's proceedings.

What is the MLB Draft?

The MLB Draft is a three-day event where all 30 major league clubs have the chance to add to their organizational depth by selecting players from a designated pool of players. The clubs then negotiate signing bonuses for each player, with every draft slot having a predetermined bonus value that serves as a starting point for negotiations.

When is the Draft?

This year's event is a 3-day affair from July 14th-16th. The draft was pushed back a few years ago to coincide with the MLB All Star Game, and ensure it took place after all collegiate seasons were done. The Draft will take place in Fort Worth, TX, as the Texas Rangers are hosting the 2024 MLB All-Star Game down the road in Arlington. Sunday's start time is slated for 5:00, the same time as the GreenJackets game begins on the same day.

What players are eligible?

Any player that meets the eligibility requirements can be selected, so long as they fill out the paperwork to ensure their name is in the draft. Players can be selected either out of high school or college. All high schoolers that graduated from a high school in the USA or one of its territories during the year of the Draft can be selected. Any player who is currently on a junior college or NAIA roster is eligible as well, while NCAA players must have either played three seasons or be 21 years of age within three months of the draft's completion.

How long is the Draft?

Since 2021, the MLB Draft has consisted of 20 rounds over three days. The Draft was previously 40 rounds through 2019, and 5 rounds in the shortened 2020 iteration. There are also multiple supplementary rounds in the early portion of the selection process, determined by external factors such as revenue sharing, free agency, and rewards for player performance.

When will the draft picks come to Augusta?

There's no telling! It all depends on how quickly they sign with the Braves, and where Atlanta chooses to put them. In the past, some players that are older or more experienced have bypassed Single-A entirely and gone straight to Rome. Other players often begin at the FCL level, although the Complex League will finish early this year so there are less opportunities for young players to start there. The first wave of draftees to hit Augusta will likely arrive around the end of the month.

Who are the Braves going to pick?

We have no idea. With 20 rounds and thousands of eligible players, any attempt to predict selections is guesswork, although some rumors do have momentum regarding first round selections. But the mystery is what makes the Draft so exciting!
