What's In a Name?

When it was announced that there would be a minor league team coming to play in Brooklyn for the 2001 season, The Daily News and WFAN sponsored a "Name the Team" contest in hopes of creating a team name that reflected Brooklyn's rich baseball history while paying homage to its loyal fans. The top 10 submissions were:

1. Brooklyn Cyclones
2. Brooklyn Knights
3. Brooklyn Eagles
4. Brooklyn Bums
5. Brooklyn Mets
6. Brooklyn Bombers
7. Brooklyn Bridges
8. Brooklyn Brawlers
9. Coney Island Coasters
10. Coney Island Hot Dogs

In the end it was the Brooklyn Cyclones. The team's on-field cap became so popular with fans that they sold more than all major and minor league teams excluding the Seattle Mariners during the 2001 season. It was Ichiro Suzuki's rookie year in MLB.

The team won the McNamara Division and then defeated the Staten Island Yankees in the first round of the playoffs. After winning Game One of the NYPL Championship Series, the remainder of the series was cancelled following the tragic events of September 11, 2001, with both Williamsport and Brooklyn being honored as Co-Champions.

SAL HISTORY

Baseball in Asheville

Mccormick Field is one of the oldest Minor League Baseball stadiums in use, having opened for the 1924 season. The ballpark was also the home ballpark for the Asheville Blues of the Negro Southern League in the 1940s. The scoreboard in right field features a unique placard displaying "Visitors" for the away team and "Tourists" for the home side. Asheville teams have played under different names, but the first team dates back to 1897.

JACKIE & PEE WEE

"This monument honors Jackie Robinson and Pee Wee Reese: teammates, friends and men of courage and conviction. Robinson broke the color barrier in Major League Baseball, Reese supported him and together they made history."

These words are etched into the marble foundation of the stunning monument outside of the Surf Avenue entrance of Maimonides Park. The monument depicts the two Brooklyn baseball icons - Jackie Robinson and Pee Wee Reese - in a moment that has become both symbolic and mythical.

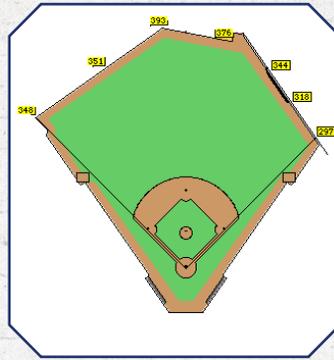

The monument's text describes the moment: "In May 1947, on Cincinnati's Crosley Field, Robinson endured racist taunts, jeers, and death threats that would have broken the spirit of a lesser man. Reese, captain of the Brooklyn Dodgers, walked over to his teammate Robinson and stood by his side, silencing the taunts of the crowd. This simple gesture challenged prejudice and created a powerful and enduring friendship."

In an unveiling ceremony on November 1, 2005, New York City Mayor Michael Bloomberg recognized the tremendous impact that Robinson and Reese made on American culture and society. The widows of both Hall of Famers - Rachel Robinson and Dorothy Reese - as well as the sculptor, William Behrends, were in attendance. Also present were Mark Reese (Pee Wee's son), Jeff Wilpon, former Mets General Manager Omar Minaya, Borough President Marty Markowitz, Dodgers teammates Johnny Podres and Joe Pignatano, New York Mets John Franco and Mo Vaughn as well as sportswriter Stah Isaacs, Joan Hodges and other celebrities and dignitaries.

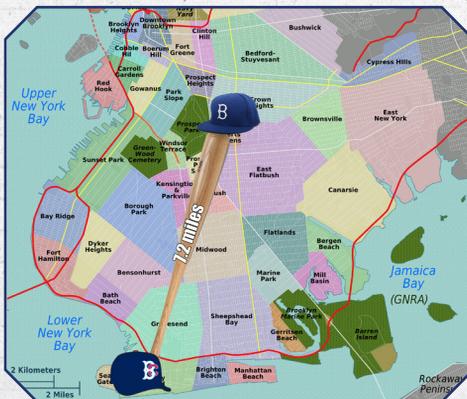

Rachel Robinson spoke passionately about the man she calls "Jack" and about her family's friendship with Pee Wee saying "I believe that this statue illustrates to us all that no one who dares to stand up and challenge the status quo stands alone."

The statue was vandalized on August 7, 2013, immediately restored, and rededicated on August 19, 2013 as part of Diversity Day on Coney Island.

The Original Nathan's Famous (A)

Nathan's Famous was founded by Polish immigrant Nathan Handwerker in 1916. Nathan sold hot dogs, based on a recipe developed by his wife Ida, out of a small hot dog stand. Al Capone, Jimmy Durante and Cary Grant were regulars at Nathan's right here on Coney Island. In 1939, Franklin Delano Roosevelt served Nathan's Hot Dogs to the King and Queen of England.

The Cyclone Rollercoaster (B)

Opened on June 26, 1927, this all-wooden coaster starts with an 85-foot tall, 60-degree drop as you shake, rattle and roll through six turns and eight more drops. It was built on the site of America's first roller coaster, known as Switchback Railway, which opened in 1864. When it first opened, a ride cost 25 cents. It was declared a landmark on July 12, 1988 and was placed on the National Register of Historic Places on June 26, 1991.

Deno's Wonder Wheel (C)

The world famous Wonder Wheel is not your ordinary Ferris Wheel. Built in 1920, it is one of only a handful of eccentric wheels in the world. Eccentric wheels differ from conventional Ferris Wheels in that some of the passenger cars are not fixed directly to the rim of the wheel, but instead slide on rails as the wheel rotates. The Wonder Wheel has 24 fully enclosed passenger cars and reaches a height of 150 feet.

Luna Park: Sling Shot (D)

Built in 2012, the Sling Shot is one of the newest extreme thrill rides at the revamped Luna Park. The Sling Shot launches passengers over 150 feet into the sky at over 90 MPH before an inverted free fall brings you back to earth. NOT for the faint of heart.

The Soarin' Eagle (E)

This four-across coaster has 1,293 feet of track and hits speeds of up to 41 MPH through a series of heart-line inversions, hairpin turns, barrel rolls, sudden drops and exciting twists that leave you soaring like an eagle.

The Thunderbolt (F)

Named after the historic rollercoaster that once stood on the same location, the all-new Thunderbolt opened in the summer of 2014. Thrilling riders with speeds of 65 MPH, the 125 foot tall rollercoaster features over 2,000 feet of track. The Thunderbolt is the latest attraction added to the Coney Island skyline that will thrill visitors with heart pounding excitement.

B&B Carousel (G)

Originally built in 1906, the B&B Carousel features 50 hand-carved horses that have been restored to match their original detail. It features the Gebruder Bruder "Elite Orchestra Apollo" band organ, one of only three existing in the United States. The carousel operated down the block on Surf Avenue for 70 years until it was sold to the city of New York in 2005. It opened in its current location on May 24, 2013.

Coney Island Parachute Jump (H)

Originally built for the 1939 World's Fair in Flushing Meadows, Queens, the Parachute Jump was moved to its current site in 1941. It rises 262 feet tall and weighs over 170 tons. The ride ceased operation in 1964 when Steeplechase Park was closed for good. It is often referred to as "The Eiffel Tower of Brooklyn" and was given a $2 million makeover prior to the summer of 2013 with the addition of 8,000 colored LED lights.

THE CATBIRD SEAT

“The Catbird Seat” was a phrase frequently used by Brooklyn Dodgers radio announcer Red Barber during his tenure as broadcaster for “Dem Bums.” When the Cyclones brought professional baseball back to the borough for the first time since the Dodgers headed west, it was another southern gentleman, Warner Fusselle, who resurrected the phrase to describe his perch atop the ballpark, where he called all of the Brooklyn Cyclones action.

Warner was the “Voice of the Cyclones” from 2001-2011, missing only a handful of games during his 11 seasons in the Catbird Seat. On June 10, 2012, the only announcer the Brooklyn Cyclones had ever known passed away from a heart attack. For the entire 2012 season, “The Catbird Seat” was left vacant, with radio broadcasters using alternate locations to call the action on the field. In addition, the Cyclones wore commemorative patches on their home uniforms with Warner’s initials separated by his trademark multi-colored umbrella. On Opening Day 2012, the Cyclones radio broadcast went silent in the top of the 6th inning to mark the first official game without our beloved Warner behind the mic.

Born on April 7, 1944, in Louisville, Kentucky and raised in Gainesville, Georgia, Fusselle served in Korea during the Vietnam War. He was also the voice of the television show “This Week in Baseball” and Seton Hall Pirates basketball during his illustrious career in the New York Metropolitan Area. A minor league baseball advocate, he also called games for the Richmond Braves and Spartanburg Phillies. In addition, Warner broadcast games for the ABA’s Virginia Squires, calling the action for Hall-of-Famers Julius “Dr. J” Erving and George Gervin.

In 2015, the New York-Penn League introduced the Warner Fusselle Award for Radio Excellence, given to the best radio broadcaster in the NYPL. The “Voice of the Cyclones” was inducted into the New York-Penn League Hall of Fame at the 2017 All-Star Game played at Joseph L. Bruno Stadium in Troy, NY.

THE FUSSELLE AWARD FOR RADIO EXCELLENCE

Starting in 2015 the New York-Penn League annually awarded the Warner Fusselle Award for Radio Excellence at the Winter Meetings. The award is given to someone who exemplifies Warner’s dedication and love of the game of baseball. Winners are selected by a panel of New York-Penn League executives. Below is a list of winners of the award:

- 2015: George Commo (Vermont Lake Monsters)
- 2016: John Leahy (Lowell Spinners)
- 2017: Steve Jones & Joe Putnam (State College Spikes)
- 2018: John Leahy (Lowell Spinners)
- 2019: Keith Raad (Brooklyn Cyclones)

LARRY MACPHAIL AWARD

Following the 2017 season, the Brooklyn Cyclones were recognized with Minor League Baseball's 52nd annual Larry MacPhail Award. The award recognizes the top promotional effort in Minor League Baseball.

The award has been presented since 1966 and is named after Hall of Famer Leland Stanford "Larry" MacPhail, Sr., who introduced innovations such as night baseball, airplane travel, pension plans and batting helmets. The Cyclones received their award at the Baseball Winter Meetings Banquet on Sunday, December 10, 2017, at the Walt Disney World Swan and Dolphin Resort in Orlando, Florida. The Cyclones are just the second New York-Penn League team to win the award, joining the Lowell Spinners (2000).

"On behalf of the entire Brooklyn Cyclones organization, we would like to thank Minor League Baseball for this prestigious honor," said Cyclones Vice President Steve Cohen. "Our industry is filled with some of the most innovative and creative minds in the world, so to be singled out from the field of so many worthy nominees is truly humbling."

The Cyclones' combination of unique giveaways, theme nights, community programs and television/social media commercials led them to become the first Short-Season franchise in history to draw over 200,000 fans for 17 consecutive years, and they led the New York-Penn League in attendance for the previous 18 seasons. The Cyclones claimed Minor League Baseball Promotion of the Year honors in 2014 and 2015, and were nominated for a Golden Bobblehead Award (MiLB's top promotional honor) in three separate categories in 2017. Since 2014, their 14 Golden Bobblehead Award nominations are more than any other team in Minor League Baseball.

"Year after year, the Brooklyn Cyclones host some of the most creative, entertaining and memorable promotional events in all of Minor League Baseball, events that are appealing to fans of all ages, both locally and across the country," said Minor League Baseball President & CEO Pat O'Connor. "That the Cyclones have been nominated for more promotional awards than any other club over the last four seasons is a testament to their incredibly creative and talented staff, and their use of MCU Park for community and charitable events has been exemplary. On behalf of Minor League Baseball, I commend them on a job well done, not only for themselves, but also for the New York-Penn League and Minor League Baseball as a whole."

MORE THAN BASEBALL

Maimonides Park is a place for more than just baseball. It has housed boxing and wrestling matches, concerts, weddings and cultural events. It has also been the backdrop for several television shows and movies that have filmed right here on Coney Island. Here's a look at some of the non-baseball events that have taken place at Maimonides Park:

CONCERTS

In June 2015, Maimonides Park hosted the largest concert in ballpark history when Mumford & Sons performed two shows in front of over 30,000 fans. The ballpark has also hosted acts like Snoop Dogg, The White Stripes, Phish, Diplo, Jay-Z, Wilco, Daft Punk, Furthur, and more.

WRESTLING & BOXING

On July 7, 2001, professional boxing returned to Brooklyn for the first time in nearly 50 years when Hector Camacho Jr. took on Jesse James Leija in a fight that was telecast on HBO. In 2010, the park hosted a live TNA Wrestling event - their first outdoor show - and drew over 5,500, their largest attendance for a U.S. show. Maimonides Park has hosted Ring of Honor wrestling in each of the last two summers as well.

MOVIES

Will Ferrell and Mark Wahlberg filmed scenes from "The Other Guys" at MCU Park. The scene in which Derek Jeter was "shot" by Wahlberg took place in the tunnel that leads to the Cyclones locker room from the home dugout. Most recently, the stadium was featured in the film "Kingsman: The Secret Service" starring Colin Firth, Michael Caine and Samuel L. Jackson.

TELEVISION

A number of TV shows including "The Apprentice," "CSI:NY" and HBO's "Bored to Death" have filmed at the ballpark. In the series finale of "Bored to Death," Ted Danson, Jason Schwartzman and Zach Galifianakis (seen here as Super Ray) stop a kidnapping attempt at Brooklyn Wonders ballpark. Most recently, CBS's "Limitless" and "Project Runway: All Stars" have filmed at the ballpark.

CEREMONIES

On July 8, 2006, the Cyclones hosted the nuptials of Dave and Carrie Kerpen. Since then, the ballpark has hosted several weddings, bar mitzvahs, graduations and numerous other festive occasions.

COMMERCIALS

In 2009, CC Sabathia and Johan Santana filmed a commercial spot for Subway Restaurants in the Cyclones Locker Room. The pair of Cy Young Award winners discuss their favorite sandwiches. NY Lottery and several other companies have used Maimonides Park as the backdrop to sell their products.

BALLPARK GROUND RULES

1. All thrown balls behind home plate are live. Any ball lodged in pads or netting is a dead ball.
2. All balls thrown off of dugout padding or netting remain in play. The ball will be considered dead if the ball or player go inside of the dugout or handicapped elevator.
3. OUTFIELD FENCE / HOME RUN:
  - A batted ball must clear both levels of the 16 foot leftfield wall in order for it to be considered a home run.
  - A batted ball that hits the scoreboard above the leftfield wall, batter's eye behind the centerfield wall, or any of the lightpoles (and attached lightpole signage) behind the left, center and rightfield walls and returns to the field of play is a home run.
  - If a batted ball hits the high, angled left-centerfield wall and caroms over the smaller centerfield wall without touching the ground first, it is a home run.
4. A batted ball that bounces over the fence or rolls under the access door in centerfield is considered a ground-rule double.
5. FRIDAY NIGHT FIREWORKS:
  - Coney Island may host fireworks shows on Friday nights. Coney Island fireworks shows are scheduled independently of the Brooklyn Cyclones. The Cyclones have limited control over the fireworks show. Shows are scheduled to begin at 9:30 PM, but can be held until 10:00 PM, if necessary. Shows MUST begin by 10:00 PM due to local ordinances. Umpires and managers will be informed of this schedule prior to each Friday game, and a decision will be made by the umpires and managers whether to continue play or break during the show while the resulting smoke clears.
6. All on-field personnel are asked to not use sunflower seeds, chewing gum or any tobacco products on the field at any time.

On April 7, 2016, the New York City Council voted 44-3 in favor of a ban of all smokeless tobacco within recreational venues that issue tickets (i.e. Maimonides Park). The ban applies to Citi Field, Yankee Stadium, and Maimonides Park among others. Those caught using smokeless tobacco at stadiums are subject to fines.

WHAT IS FIELD TURF?

Prior to the 2013 season, Maimonides Park installed a state-of-the-art playing surface engineered by FieldTurf and installed by LandTek. FieldTurf is a brand of synthetic grass. It is NOT AstroTurf. FieldTurf Tarkett is headquartered and manufactured in Calhoun, Georgia. It was first installed on a professional playing surface in 1997 when Middlesbrough F.C., a member of the Premier League, installed the surface at Riverside Stadium. Since then, FieldTurf has been installed on over 7,000 playing fields world wide.

As of 2021, five NFL Franchises use FieldTurf as their playing surface for home games including the Atlanta Falcons, Carolina Panthers, Detroit Lions, New England Patriots, Seattle Seahawks. In addition, Super Bowl XLVI - which was played at Lucas Oil Stadium in Indianapolis - was the first Super bowl played on FieldTurf. Super Bowl XLVIII at MetLife Stadium was also played on FieldTurf.

The Brooklyn Cyclones are now one of six teams in Minor League Baseball to use FieldTurf, joining the Aberdeen IronBirds, Daytona Tortugas, Eugene Emeralds, Everett Aqua Sox, Hudson Valley Renegades and Hillsboro Hops.

PUZZLE PIECE PLAYHOUSE

The Brooklyn Cyclones, in conjunction with Curemark LLC, announced a first-of-its-kind partnership starting with the 2019 season. Starting with Opening Day, Friday, June 14th, the team introduced The Puzzle Piece Playhouse – a sensory safe space, designed specifically to accommodate children with Autism Spectrum Disorder, as well as their families.

The space, which will be offered free of charge, is located in a newly renovated and redesigned Luxury Suite at Maimonides Park. The Puzzle Piece Playhouse is fully equipped with sensory toys, games, and tools, provided by Fun & Function, to make their experience feel like home.

"We are honored to form this partnership with the Brooklyn Cyclones in what we hope will be the first of many spaces dedicated to children and adults with autism around professional baseball," said Dr. Joan Fallon, CEO of Curemark LLC. "Every person in the US should have access to baseball and sport whether as a participant or as a spectator. I applaud the Cyclones organization and their parent organization, the NY Mets, for this bold step."

"Our organization is focused on making all fans feel welcome and safe when they come to Maimonides Park," said Cyclones Vice President Steve Cohen. "The Puzzle Piece Playhouse is the newest way we have achieved this goal. We're excited to be able to provide a way for a new group of fans to come and experience Cyclones baseball."

The suite is available for up to 12 people, or two families, for each of the Cyclones 38 home games. Interested families can sign up, or get more information, by visiting BrooklynCyclones.com.

"When the Brooklyn Cyclones asked Fun and Function to create a sensory room, we were thrilled to level the playing field for all fans. We believe that our different abilities are our greatest strength, and we've equipped the Puzzle Piece Playhouse to help each person thrive," said Aviva Weiss, CEO of Fun and Function, which designs products and environments for children and adults with autism, sensory processing and attention disorders, and other challenges. "An inclusive stadium improves the experience for everyone in the game," she added.

In addition to corporate champions Curemark and Fun & Function, the space was made available through a private donation from Michael DeCellis and Karen Santana.

"We are thrilled that we are able to help make Puzzle Piece Playhouse a reality for those who are on the autism spectrum, as well as their families and caregivers. As parents of a child with autism, and myself a former special education teacher of students with autism in District 75, we understand how important accessibility and inclusivity is in all spaces. We believe the Puzzle Piece Playhouse demonstrates that the Brooklyn Cyclones are committed to welcoming all people to enjoy our nation's pastime."
