NO-HITTERS

BY NATHAN STRAUSS

No-hitters are always special, and they come in a variety of forms. They can be nine innings or seven, feature one pitcher or several, and even result in a win or a loss. The GreenJackets had previously featured three different types of no-nos: a combined nine inning game, started by GreenJackets Hall-of-Famer Sergio Romo, a seven inning no-hitter from Jake McCasland in 2017, and a nine inning perfect game from Domenic Mazza in 2018 which remains the only such game in South Atlantic League history. When Keller and Harper completed the game on Sunday with 21 outs and 0 hits, they became the artists of the fourth different style of no-hitter for Augusta's record books.

On Sunday, July 30th, Augusta arrived at Joseph P. Riley Jr. Stadium bright and early, and took the first game of the scheduled doubleheader by a score of 3-2. An hour later, Keller made the start for the GreenJackets in game two and worked around a pair of walks to begin the game, retiring three straight with two men in scoring position to retire the side. This began a string of 11 straight men retired by Keller, who kept the RiverDogs from reaching base until the bottom of the fourth inning.

Augusta took a 1-0 lead in the top of the fourth. Bryson Worrell singled before Cory Acton, who went 3-3 in the second game, doubled him home. Keller spun a scoreless and hitless fourth and fifth, issuing a walk but nothing else. In the sixth, Acton roped a single, taking second on an error and stealing third base. Jair Casanova doubled the Augusta lead with a hard-struck single through the heart of the infield, putting the score at 2-0.

Keller returned to the mound in the bottom of the sixth, surrendering a leadoff walk and recording a fielder's choice for the first out. After 5.1 innings without allowing a hit, Keller was relieved by Landon Harper, who induced a beautiful 6-4-3 double play to retire the side. (To his credit, Keller wanted to stay in the game, but with his pitch count in the low 80s he did not have a choice but to depart). After Augusta went scoreless in the top of the seventh, Harper returned to the mound and worked around a leadoff hit batsman to retire the side, capping off the day with a strikeout of Raudelis Martinez before being mobbed on the mound.

Keller, just 18 years old at the beginning of the season, had been sidelined for five weeks earlier in the campaign and was coming off an outing the week previous when he gave up eight runs in 1.1 innings while hitting four men. "I knew Harper had it in the bag," said Keller. "Harp just throws strikes and has been terrific all year long." Harper lost half his thumb on his throwing hand in an accident in his youth, but developed his own style of gripping pitches despite being half a finger down.

"There are just some things that seem better when they happen a certain way, and finishing off a no-hitter with a strikeout is one of them," said Augusta skipper Cody Gabella. "It's huge for those guys, especially having handled adversity over this season."

The players and coaches stormed the mound on the final out, sending Powerade flying through the air as they celebrated. Harper and Keller kept the game balls, a souvenir from a historic afternoon, before beginning the trek back on I-20 to North Augusta. In a few years, this game may become a distant memory for many, but those baseballs will linger on Harper and Keller's mantles as a reminder of when they made history, one Sunday in the Holy City.
