Free Bird: Alex Freeland was held without a hit Friday, but drew two walks, scored a run and stole a base. Over his last 13 games, Freeland is batting .386 (22x57) with nine multi-hit games, 10 extra-base hits, 15 RBI and nine runs scored...His 26 hits are tied for second-most in the Minors, while his nine doubles rank tied for third in the Minors. Freeland's six stolen bases are tied for fourth in the PCL, while his 17 RBI are tied for seventh...He already surpassed his doubles total from 2024 with OKC when he hit seven doubles over 39 Triple-A games and is one RBI shy of tying his Triple-A mark of 18 with OKC last season. He is already up to six stolen bases this season after recording two with OKC in 2024.

The Warden: After being held 0-for-11 over his previous three games, Ryan Ward recorded his seventh multi-hit game and third multi-RBI game of 2025 Friday. Ward went 2-for-3 with two RBI and a walk...He now has 207 RBI in his OKC career, placing him sixth on the career Bricktown-era RBI list and he is 21 RBI away from tying the record of 230 set by Jason Botts (2005-08). He is one RBI shy from tying Nate Gold (2007-09) for fifth place...Ward hit two home runs last week and has 56 homers in his OKC career, ranking fourth all-time on the Bricktown-era list and four from tying Jason Hart's team record of 60 (2002-03; 2006). Ward's next homer will tie him with Scott Sheldon (1998-99) for third place.

2-for-1: The Comets turned their 21st double play of the season Friday and the total ranks second-most in the Minors. Oklahoma City now has recorded seven double plays over the last three games, including four on Wednesday. It was the first time OKC turned four double plays in a nine-inning game since June 9, 2024 vs. Round Rock...The Comets have at least one double play in each of the last seven games for a total of 13 during that time.

Cheers for Chavis: Michael Chavis went 1-for-4 with a double and a run scored Friday. Today marks the first time since May 27, 2010 OKC and Tacoma are scheduled for a double dip...After outhitting their opponent 10 times over the first 11 games of the season, the Comets have now been outhit by their opponent in six of the last eight games, including each of the last five games...Chris Okey had Friday night off, but hit safely in a sixth straight game Thursday night and is 7-for-21 (.333) during the stretch with eight RBI.
