SYRACUSE STARS

History

The Syracuse Stars was the name of several minor league baseball teams that played in Syracuse, NY prior to the arrival to the Chiefs franchise in 1934. The original Stars franchise played in the International League in 1877. A Stars franchise played in the National League in 1879, and the American Association in 1890, the only two seasons Syracuse professional teams played in the Major Leagues. Other Stars teams spent time in the New York State League (1885, 1902-1917), Eastern Association (1891), Eastern League (1894-1901), International League (1886-1887), International Association (1878, 1888-1889) and the New York-Pennsylvania League (1928-1929).

Star Parks

The original Stars franchises played their home games at Star Park or Newell Park on the southeast corner of modern day East Raynor Avenue and South Salina Street, approximately one-half mile West of the current location of the JMA Wireless Dome. It was the home field of the Stars from 1878-1884, including the Stars season in the National League in 1879.

The second, and longest-lived, Star Park opened in 1885, bounded by Salina, Taylor, Oneida and Temple Streets, with the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad tracks running through a corner of the block (Star Park in 1885 - Onondaga Historical Society). Athletic Park was the home of the Syracuse Stars teams in the Eastern League during 1900 and part of 1901.

The Stars returned to the Salina and Taylor location during 1902 through 1904, then resumed play at Athletic Park, renaming it New Star Park, which they used during the 1905 and 1906 seasons. Athletic Park /was bordered by Marsh Street (later Hiawatha Boulevard) to the south, and by Pulaski and Liberty Streets.

The Stars moved about a mile northward, to a field called Hallock Park or First Ward Park, playing here from 1907 through 1917. This ballpark was near the end of North Salina Street not far from Onondaga Lake, and Hiawatha Boulevard toward the southeast, just steps from the future site of MacArthur Stadium and the current NBT Bank Stadium. The ballpark site itself is under the ramps for Interstate 81. The final version of Star Park, also known as Syracuse Athletic Park and International League Park, opened in 1920 and closed after the 1929 season. It was located at 1420 West Genesee Street, on the north side of that street between State Fair Boulevard and the New York Central tracks.
