Hello and welcome to C's baseball.

On behalf of our entire organization, first off let me say thank you for allowing us into your wonderful community for the 2021 season. As much as we would love to be in front of our fans in Vancouver, BC, I feel we could not have picked a more wonderful community to call home for a short time.

I owe a huge thank you to Mike and Laura McMurray, KL Wombacher and the entire Hops organization. They are long time friends and were the first to extend the hand of friendship as we were facing border closures that put our entire 2021 season in danger. Another thank you to Scott Brucker from the City of Hillsboro for his assistance in making our relocation as easy as possible and to the entire staff at Ron Tonkin Field for all your hard work on our behalf, so thank you.

As we kick off our 2021 "Home" season, we are happy to have a place to play but I want to take a moment to thank all our faithful and diehard fans in Vancouver and throughout British Columbia and all of Canada. We miss you all and wish you could join us in Hillsboro, however, we will be back at the Nat as soon as possible.

We look forward to meeting you at Ron Tonkin Field this season and look forward to a great 2021 and Thank You once again for your hospitality.

Let's go C's!

ALEX NOLAN, PITCHER

This article was penned by Steve Ewen and originally appeared in the Vancouver Province

Alex Nolan was so excited about being back in the mix with the Vancouver Canadians this season that he bought a baseball cap off another man's head.

The 25-year-old right-hander from Burlington, Ont., was preparing in May to play independent ball this season with Quebec City's Quebec Capitales when the Toronto Blue Jays called, offering to sign him for a second time.

The Jays had released him last winter. He had signed as an undrafted free agent in 2019 out of Brock University in St. Catharines, Ont., and pitched that summer for the C's. COVID-19 wiped out all of minor league baseball last summer and then the farm systems were revamped in the winter, costing 43 teams affiliation status and countless players their jobs. Nolan got caught up in that.

He was elated for another chance, and wanted a good-luck charm for his trip to the Jays' spring training complex in Dunedin, Fla., and had zeroed in on a C's cap routinely worn by his then-Capitales teammate Lachlan Fontaine, a pitcher/infielder from North Vancouver. Nolan had to bargain with Fontaine to get him to eventually part with it. He won't say what he paid.

"The C's are special to people. I get that. There were a lot of memories for him tied to that," Nolan explained.

Nolan made four appearances with Toronto's low-A Dunedin team this season before getting promoted in June to the C's, who are a member of the high-A West League. Going into Wednesday, Nolan was 0-1, with a 3.68 ERA, in eight Vancouver appearances, all out of the bullpen.

His fastball isn't overwhelming, sitting in the 92 m.p.h. range, and he doesn't pile up the strikeouts, with nine through his first 14 2/3 innings with Vancouver this year. He had 35 strikeouts in 58 2/3 innings for Vancouver in 2019, a season in which he went 1-3, with a 3.22 ERA, in 12 appearances, including six starts.

The ability to make people swing and miss is often a key to advancement. Nolan is going to have to battle to continue to move up through the Toronto system. He has, of course, shown his willingness to battle. Nolan could have been excused if he was rattled the day he was cut by Toronto. He says that, instead, he went to the gym after getting that phone call, wanting to get a workout in because "I knew that I was still a minor-league-calibre baseball player."

ALEX NOLAN, PITCHER

This article was penned by Steve Ewen and originally appeared in the Vancouver Province

"The phone call about coming back was awesome. It was very, very motivating," the 6-foot-4, 225 pounder said. "It was like going back to the old girlfriend who had dumped you. It was, 'All right, I want to show what you almost let get away.'"

"I take playing for the Toronto Blue Jays and their organization very personally. That's the team I always cheered for growing up. My heroes have all played for the Toronto Blue Jays. I don't have any favourite players who weren't Toronto Blue Jays."

The U.S. border restrictions brought about by COVID-19 have meant that the C's haven't been able to play out of Nat Bailey Stadium in Vancouver so far this season. They've, instead, been based out of Hillsboro, Ore., sharing a ballpark in the Portland suburb with the Hillsboro Hops, one of their five rivals in the West League.

Vancouver president Andy Dunn has been adamant that he wants to play games at The Nat again sometime this summer. The West League is playing six-game series every Tuesday to Sunday and Vancouver has two home series left in August and two in September. Their regular season ends Sept. 19. The C's haven't played a game at The Nat since Aug. 30, 2019. Nolan got the start the day before and went five innings in a no-decision.

Nolan's one of a handful of players with the current C's who have played at The Nat. The C's were a short-season single-A Northwest League team then. That level was wiped out in the minors' rebuild, and six of the eight teams from the circuit were promoted two levels to the newly formed West loop. That dovetails with players' progressions as well.

"The fans are what makes the place so special," Nolan said of Vancouver and The Nat. "It's the No. 1 thing. It's magical because of them. It's electric. I'd love to get back there for playoffs. That would be something. The guys who don't know what it's like in Vancouver can sense the buzz when we all talk about it.

"We're going to get back there."
