DUTCHESS COUNTY GOVERNMENT

April 4, 2025

Dear Renegades fans,

Welcome back to Heritage Financial Park, as we start another exciting season of Hudson Valley Renegades baseball at this terrific Dutchess County park! Like you, I'm eager and proud to watch our home team take the field for what promises to be another thrilling and successful season.

It's hard to believe it's been 31 years since the Renegades played their first home game here in 1994. That game marked the beginning of countless wins in front of thousands of passionate Dutchess County fans each night. Over the years, this ballpark has hosted future big-league stars, a few World Series champs, and several major-league managers. The Renegades have made the playoffs 11 times, including last year, and captured three league titles, bringing the excitement of championship baseball to our community.

Whether you're a devoted season ticket holder or visiting our park for the first time, you are part of a 30-plus-year tradition of family-friendly fun that has thrilled millions of fans here in Dutchess County. This year's New York Yankees feature several former Renegades, and some of the players on our field this season may one day call Yankee Stadium home.

Dutchess County and I extend our best wishes to Renegades manager James Cooper, his players, and coaches for a fantastic season. I have no doubt that Renegades fans will be loud and proud in their support throughout all 66 home games at Heritage Financial Park. We welcome the team's new General Manager, Tom Denlinger; and we wish him and his staff, who work tirelessly to create an unforgettable experience for fans, every success this season.

With incredible talent on the field and a dedicated front office, the 2025 season is sure to build upon the Renegades' decades-long tradition of creating cherished memories for fans. Here's to another season of great baseball and unforgettable moments!

Play ball!

A day 3 draft pick
from a small school in NC
Dillon Lewis has
loudly announced his presence

At first glance, Dillon Lewis' decision to play at Queens University appears simple. His dad T.J. was a college basketball player at Queens. However, that didn't actually factor into Lewis' decision. Lewis grew up in Maryland but moved to North Carolina before his senior year of high school. Just down the road from his new home, the Royals program gave him a chance to play collegiately.

"It's funny, it really wasn't a big driving piece," Dillon Lewis. "Growing up I had been around the school and the campus, but it had never been a main focus like I want to play ball here. But the opportunity came to be able to be local and to play with a good community around me. So it ended up being a good fit."

Lewis struggled to find opportunities to play collegiate baseball coming out of high school. The decision ended up paying major dividends. He felt wanted at Queens, and he is forever grateful for their belief in him.

"It means everything," Lewis. "It was during a time where it was kind of difficult to find opportunities during the pandemic and everything. It definitely allowed me to get my feet wet in college baseball. In my second year, we made the step up to Division-I which was a whole other set of circumstances and competition."

As his freshman season was winding down in 2022, Lewis and his teammates watched as Queens worked through the process of becoming a D-1 program. It was a unique experience to be at the school while the transition was taking place. Every day, there seemed to be a new twist in the story.

"It was very interesting," Lewis said. "I remember we had our trainer in the dugout during games saying, hey the Big South is coming, the ASUN is coming. We didn't really know where we'd end up until halfway into the summer. But at the same time, it definitely provided a lot of excitement because it's a new step up. You're going to do things a little more formally. You're going to play some big programs. You're going to travel a little more. So it was pretty fun."

After two up-and-down seasons at Queens for Lewis in 2022 and 2023, the Royals hired a new coaching staff. Jake Hendrick was hired as the new head coach and James Cullinane arrived as the program's hitting coach. These changes played a big role in Lewis' outstanding junior season. After hitting 13 total home runs in his first two seasons, Lewis hit 22 long balls in 2024. He hit .371 with a .729 slugging percentage, driving in 63 runs.

"I think the second time through the journey of the season, you get a better mental picture of what's going to happen," Lewis said. "I had some injuries that I dealt with earlier on that I was able to move past. Our hitting coach James Cullinane, I was able to really connect with him and build a good relationship. We worked all fall throughout the spring on the little things just to touch up the game, putting a more complete product on the field instead of just being raw or occasionally lucking your way into results."

In the end, playing for a smaller program like Queens has its benefits. Lewis is grateful that he had the chance to work through everyday challenges. There wasn't the same pressure for him to succeed right away, with less concern about losing playing time to other teammates.

"At bigger schools, you get handed some more opportunities in terms of there's more out there to see," Lewis said. "I think with smaller schools, it forces you to make your way. You're going to discover what works for you, the lanes you're going to take, the relationships you have to build. I was able to find my way early on. I wasn't really guided to do much. I had to just figure out what works best for me and continue to grow through that."

After his First-Team All-ASUN performance in 2024, Lewis started getting attention from MLB organizations. He didn't get his hopes up, but when the call came from the Yankees in the 13th round last year, it felt like his hard work was rewarded.

"I really had no clue what was going to happen until that call came through," Lewis said. "It's been great. I grew up a Yankee fan and getting an opportunity to put the pinstripes on and be a part of this organization that I've rooted for, meeting players that I've been watching on TV for 20 years, is very special."

The start of Lewis' professional career has featured many highlights. After a brief debut following last year's draft, Lewis began his first full season with Single-A Tampa. In May, Lewis was named Florida State League Player of the Month. He slashed .309/.381/.660 with eight home runs, 26 RBIs, and a 1.041 OPS. The guidance of Yankees coaching has been very impactful already.

"It's just the preparation really," Lewis said. "Being able to create routines. We were exposed to a lot of stuff very early. The organization is very process-oriented, which is big. The results aren't always going to be there, especially at these levels while you're learning. But understanding that there's still growth in that, and to be able to find success in that good process has definitely helped me long-term."

When Lewis earned the callup to Hudson Valley in early June, the Renegades were beginning a road trip in Aberdeen. The outfielder grew up in Columbia, Maryland, just down the road. He got the chance to make his High-A debut with friends and family in attendance.

"It was great," Lewis said. "It was a really good introduction to the next stop on the journey. Anytime you can get that support, it means everything because this game is a little isolating sometimes. You're doing this every single day. You never know where you're actually going to be, so being able to have that support definitely means the world."

In July, Lewis really hit his stride with the Renegades. From July 10 to August 3, the Hudson Valley outfielder slashed .352/.429/.648 with eight extra-base hits, 18 RBIs, and a 1.077 OPS. Lewis moved into the Yankees Top 30 prospects list with his performance.

"I think it's just been getting adjusted, Lewis said. "Getting adjusted to the new surroundings, getting adjusted to a new level of baseball. I think that's something that takes time. I just feel like I've been able to do what I'm capable of and get the most out of myself."

Looking at the updated Yankees Top 30 prospects

By: Jordy Fee-Platt

The MLB Draft and trade deadline have come and gone. After a very active July in the Yankees organization, the farm system looks quite different. With some departing the organization in trades, the opportunity has opened for new players to enter the prospect radar.

Here is MLB Pipeline's updated Yankees Top 30 Prospects list. You'll find excerpts from Pipeline bios for current Renegades included below, courtesy of MLB.com. Among the group of 30 players, 10 players have spent a portion of their season with Hudson Valley (indicated in bold).

1. George Lombard Jr.
2. Carlos Lagrange
3. Cam Schlittler
4. Spencer Jones
5. Bryce Cunningham

Cunningham works with a mid-90s fastball that tops out at 97 mph, and he learned last spring to more consistently avoid barrels by locating it up in the zone with quality carry. The shape of his heater plays extremely well with his hard upper-80s changeup that fades and skins so much that it can be difficult to land for strikes. His sweeping mid-80s slider gives him an effect third pitch – one that the Yankees specialize in refining. If New York can upgrade his slider, he could become the system's best pitching prospect.

6. Elmer Rodriguez-Cruz

7. Ben Hess

8. Chase Hampton

9. Roderick Arias

10. Brock Selvidge

11. Henry Lalane

12. Mani Cedenio

13. Cade Smith

Smith's best attribute is his ability to spin the ball, which produces a plus mid-80s slider with two-plane depth and a solid low-80s curveball with similar depth. He also generates high spin rates on his fastball, which operates at 92-94 mph and touches 96 with carry. While Smith is a bit smaller than a typical starter, he has a quick arm and a relatively clean delivery. He relies on chases more than landing his pitches in the zone, so he'll need to learn to command his fastball and control his breaking balls as he rises through the Minors. He has the ceiling of a mid-rotation starter and a sturdy floor as a multi-inning reliever.

14. Kyle Carr

After dealing at 91-95 mph and touching 97 with his fastball at Palomar, Carr worked more at 88-92 and topped out at 94 with his two-and four-seamer in 2024. Carr's walk rate also doubled from 6 percent in junior college to 12 percent at High-A as he became reluctant to attack hitters with diminished stuff. His athleticism and arm speed help him overcome a lack of physicality, and offseason workouts have the Yankees optimistic that he's recapturing his Palomar form. If that happens and he adds some strength and polish, he could still become a No. 3 or No. 4 starter.

15. Eric Reyzelman

16. Thatcher Hurd

17. Brando Mayea

18. Francisco Vilorio

19. Greysen Carter

20. Brendan Jones

21. Dillon Lewis

A right-handed hitter with an upright stance, Lewis generates some of the best exit velocities in the system and attempts to maximize his at least plus raw power by looking to launch balls in the air to his pull side. His approach produces extra-base hits but also results in strikeouts. Lewis has solid speed and plays quicker than that on the bases. He has divided his time among all three outfield positions in pro ball, and he's a decent center fielder, but more effective on the corner; with fringy arm strength, he may be best suited for left field.

22. Brendan Beck

23. Stiven Martinez

24. Dylan Jasso

25. Wilson Rodriguez

26. Jace Avina

27. T.J. Rumfield

28. Harrison Cohen

29. Tony Rossi

Rossi's mid-80s slider has continued to overmatch batters at two Class A level, featuring huge sweep at its best. He sets up his slide piece with a fastball that parks at 94-96 mph and touches 98, and he'll alternate between carrying it at the letters and throwing it with downhill plane lower in the zone. His upper-80s splitter can make hitters look foolish too. A physical 6-foot-3, 230-pounder, Rossi works from a low arm slot and uses his size to create extension. He has the stuff to advance quickly if he can find the strike zone on a regular basis.

Renegades pitcher Hayden Merda

By: Jordy Fee-Platt

After missing the entire 2024 season recovering from an arm injury, Hayden Merda returned this year and was immediately a key cog in the Hudson Valley bullpen. He moved up to Double-A Somerset mid-season, but before he left, he sat down with Renegades Magazine to talk about his season and his path to where he has gotten to in the Yankees system.

You grew up in Southern California. When you had time away from baseball, what were some of the things you liked to do growing up there?

Hayden Merda: I was big into surfing, riding bikes with my buddies, just going on hikes and doing all that outdoorsy stuff.

You decided to play college baseball at Division II Asuka Pacific University. What were some of the motivations behind that decision?

HM: Coming out of high school, I had no other options. I was a walk-on at Asuka and then redshirted in 2019. COVID hit in 2020. I got a couple of innings my junior year in 2021 and then my senior year in 2022 took off from there.

What makes Division II baseball unique and how do you think that experience shaped you?

HM: I think Division-II is unique because coaches look for guys that can develop and not guys that can play right away. So that was where I set myself apart. I was there to develop and get better, and as time went on I improved a lot.

What did you love about the Asuza program and what were they able to give you as a pitcher?

HM: I think they gave me some good lessons for how to compete. I had to work my way into innings. Nothing was given to me, so I really had to earn the ball every time I went out there and that was something I took away from it.

Having the perspective of being someone that didn't have any offers going into college, being a walk-on, what advice can you give to teammates when things aren't going their way to help with maintain confidence?

HM: You never know what's going to turn your way and what is going to be on the other side of that stone. So you just got to keep going and believe in yourself.

You were drafted by the Yankees after your redshirt junior season in 2022. What did that mean to you to get that opportunity in pro baseball?

HM: It was really cool. I had no idea it was coming. I went to a workout a week before the draft. They were there for Eric Reyzelman, and I just happened to be throwing right after him. They liked what they saw and picked me up.

After being a reliever primarily in college, you made the transition to a starting role in your first pro season in 2023. How did get yourself ready for that?

HM: My first season was diabolical. I had no idea what starting was going to be like. I tried to learn from Drew Thorpe and some of my other buddies on the team, and I just couldn't figure it out.

You missed all of 2024 with injury. What did you find yourself doing during that time you wouldn't have had otherwise away from the field?

HM: I got the chance to rehab with a bunch of longtime big leaguers at home. Asking the right questions, picking their brains, and just learning from those guys was extremely beneficial for me. It helped set me up for this season.

What would be your advice to a guy that goes through a season-long rehab to help them prepare for game action?

HM: You have to learn from the pain and learn from the experiences. You got to grow from it. It might set you back, but you just got to keep on pushing and one day you'll watch yourself start to feel better.

Where have you felt like that year off helped you coming into 2025?

HM: I think leaving 2023 hurt, I knew had something to prove in 2025. I think that's where I had the shift. Trying to prove something and letting everyone know that I'm out here and I still got it.

How nice has it been to be back in the bullpen? That's a familiar role for you, so how much are you enjoying hanging out with the relievers during games?

HM: Those are my boys. I missed that camaraderie in the bullpen. It's been a lot of fun every game.

What's the best part of being in this clubhouse and the chemistry you guys have built in the bullpen?

HM: We have fun. We keep it loose. I love it.

What do you think has been the biggest contributor to your success this season, returning to that reliever role?

HM: I've just shifted my mindset. Coming out and doing it right. I'm not wasting time. I've changed my process and I make sure that I'm doing the small things the right way.

What do you think pitching coach Demetre Kokoris has done for you this season?

HM: Demetre and I go back a little while actually. He turned me down at Point Loma Nazarene actually coming out of high school. So when I ran into him the first day here, I brought that up and he said, 'oh my gosh, I totally remember you'. He's been great. He really pushes you to stick to the process. Do what you know how to do and do it well.

The first HOPE Week event of 2025 partnered with the American Cancer Society featured a presentation about the American Cancer Society and highlighted the Hope Lodge. Renegades players helped pack little bags of love for Hope Lodge patients in the WMCHHealth Club Lounge.

About American Cancer Society:

American Cancer Society is a leading cancer-fighting organization with a vision to end cancer as we know it, for everyone. They are improving the lives of people with cancer and their families as the only organization combating cancer through advocacy, research, and patient support, to ensure that everyone has an opportunity to prevent, detect, treat, and survive cancer. The American Cancer Society is the largest private funder of research and because of this there are more than 18 million cancer survivors in the US today.

More than just research, the American Cancer Society provides cost free services for patients and caregivers. A few of their programs include free lodging through their 31 Hope Lodge communities across the US, free rides to treatment through Road to Recovery, 24/7 cancer support and information through their National Cancer Information center that can be accessed by phone or web chat. Visit cancer.org to explore the many ways your American Cancer Society can help you and your loved one prevent, detect, treat and survive cancer.

The week continued with Renegades players visiting Project My Day, Inc. and helping to create celebration boxes for children in foster homes with upcoming birthdays in September.

About Project My Day, Inc.:

Project My Day, Inc. is a volunteer-led 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization in Newburgh, New York. They believe every child should be recognized and deserves to celebrate important events in their life. Their mission is to bring JOY into the lives of children in foster care in Dutchess and Orange County, New York, by giving them gifts on their special day(s) (Birthdays, which include a celebration box, moving-up day, graduation, prom, just because they need something, etc.)

Players headed to the Huson Valley Animal Rescue & Sanctuary on Thursday to tour the facility and enjoy dog time with the puppies, helping to socialize the animals as they prepare to be re-homed.

About Hudson Valley Animal Rescue & Sanctuary:

Hudson Valley Animal Rescue & Sanctuary (HVARs) is a 501(c) 3 non-profit animal rescue, wildlife, rehabilitation center & low-cost vet service clinic. Their mission started when we felt there was such a need to be able to bring affordable vet care to their community. In 2011 they opened their first low cost spay/neuter and vaccine clinic as a mobile hospital. Weekly they ran clinics out of their local Petco's parking lot where people were able to come and receive vaccines and affordable spaying and neutering services. From there they saw how much their services impacted the community and how much they were needed.

In 2015 they opened their stationary hospital that they run out of to this day. They renovated an old barn on their founder's property and little by little made it ready to serve the community in so many ways. They are now a multi vet facility that offers everything from wellness clinics to more complex surgeries, dentals, x-rays, bloodwork and more. They are so happy to be able to offer all these services to their community and only wish to continue to grow. All of the money that comes through their clinic services is given right back to their animals that they take in, rescue, rehabilitate and adopt out. It is also used for the hundreds of wildlife they take in orphaned, injured, or misplaced every year.

On Friday, the Renegades held their third-annual Make-A-Wish Night presented by Mirabito Energy. Local Wish Kids signed one-day contracts to be Renegades for the day and were treated to a VIP experience at Heritage Financial Park. They had their headshots on the video board, took part in between innings games, and signed autographs of their baseball cards for the Renegades players when they were on-field during batting practice.

About Make-A-Wish Hudson Valley:

Make-A-Wish® Hudson Valley creates life-changing wishes for children with critical illnesses. We seek to bring every eligible child's wish to life because a wish is an integral part of a child's treatment journey. Research shows children who have received a wish are able to build the physical and emotional strength needed to fight critical illnesses. Since its inception in 1986, the Hudson Valley Chapter has granted wishes to over 3,400 children in the community it serves. The Chapter's territory spans eight counties of the Hudson Valley, including Delaware, Dutchess, Orange, Putnam, Rockland, Sullivan, Ulster and Westchester. The Chapter is a Better Business Bureau Wise Alliance Accredited Charity, meeting the 20 Standards for Charity Accountability. Additionally, a recent independent audit of the chapter reported that 73% of all funds raised go to program services. To learn more and help the Hudson Valley Chapter grant 50 wishes this summer visit www.hudson.wish.org/summer.

HOPE Week finished up on Saturday with the Renegades and the Beacon Elks #1493 Veterans Program teaming up to play a whiffle ball game on the field and participate in a Q&A and photo session with the players for veterans.

About Beacon Elks #1493:

The Beacon Elks Lodge has proudly served the community for 101 years, upholding the values of charity, justice, brotherly love, and fidelity. They are dedicated to supporting veterans, youth, and those in need through local outreach and charitable programs. Their lodge provides scholarships, hosts community events, and offers a welcoming space for fellowship and service. For over a century, they have worked to make a positive impact in Beacon and beyond. As Elks, they believe in giving back and building a stronger, more caring community for all.

Introduced in 2009 and embarking on its 15th edition in 2024 (including a pause in 2020 due to the COVID pandemic), the Yankees' HOPE Week initiative (Helping Others Persevere & Excel) is an ambitious, week-long, multi-faceted community outreach program undertaken by all players and employees within the Yankees organization. The initiative is rooted in the belief that acts of goodwill provide hope and encouragement to more than just the recipient of the gesture.

At its core, HOPE Week is about people helping people. The one thing everybody has — no matter their background or financial situation — is time. By involving every one of the Major League Team's players and coaches, Manager Aaron Boone, General Manager Brian Cashman, and all minor league affiliates and front office staff during the celebration of HOPE Week, the Yankees send the message that everyone can give of themselves to make their community a better place.

Equally significant during HOPE Week is garnering publicity for highlighted causes and organizations. The greatest challenge facing many not-for-profits is generating interest, awareness and funding for their missions.

Matt Keating continues to evolve in his second season with the 'Gades

By: Jordy Fee-Platt

Renegades pitcher Matt Keating is still new to the art of pitching. This season marks just his third as a full-time pitcher in his baseball career. Following a successful campaign as a two-way player in junior college and at USC, Keating made the transition as a professional to a full-time relief pitcher role. The learning process is constantly evolving.

"I feel like as I've pitched more and more, I feel like the less I know," Keating said. "This is a great place for me, especially with the Yankees. The pitching department is unbelievable, and they've been so good about answering all the questions I have. The more I ask, the more I realize I don't know. But I'm excited to keep working with them and continue to keep growing."

In 2021, Keating began his college journey in his hometown of Omaha, Nebraska at Southeast Community College. Keating was a star two-way player, particularly exceling at the plate. As a freshman, he hit .404 with a school-record 19 home runs. In 16 innings on the mound, Keating struck out a whopping 33 batters and had a 0.56 ERA.

The following season, Keating went to Southern California to join the Trojans and spent most of his time on the mound. He continued to display high strikeout rates, punching out over 13 batters per nine innings while earning seven saves. The pitching success caught the eye of the Yankees in the summer of 2022, who selected him in the ninth round.

When Keating arrived in Tampa, the organization informed him he would become a full-time pitcher. This wasn't easy for Keating at first, but he quickly realized this was a path to a pro career.

"It was pretty tough to let go of the hitting side," Keating said. "But I had always told myself, if I get an opportunity to get paid to play, I'd be willing to let that piece of me go. Like I said, there is so much to learn that I'm always occupied trying to fine tune my craft that I really don't think about it that much anymore."

As Keating prepared for his first pro season in 2023, he spent a lot of time adapting his craft to the points of emphasis in the Yankees pitching department.

"Obviously the Yankees love velocity, so finding a way to do that has probably been a three-year process to where we're at now," Keating said. "I still feel like I'm trying to address that. We've added a couple of pitches along the way, kind of understanding how certain pitches play better to certain hands, and kind of optimizing my usage of each pitch so that it puts me in the best position to get outs."

After making 40 appearances in his pro debut with Single-A Tampa in 2023, Keating followed that up with another season of 40 appearances with Hudson Valley in High-A. Despite limited experience previously as a pitcher, Keating quickly became a workhorse in the bullpen. As Keating watches others grapple with long-term injuries, his durability to this point is something he has become very grateful for.

"I've been very blessed to have been healthy the last two years," Keating said. "And I think a large part of that is my daily routine after throwing in a game or just playing catch. I make sure to get my arm care in, using full prep time before I start playing catch. I think that's been what has really helped me stay healthy."

Now 24 years old, it's been four years since Keating's standout season at the plate for Southeast Community College. That doesn't mean his hitting background can't help his work on the mound. Having seen the other side of the matchup between batter and pitcher, Keating has key information that helps him attack hitters.

"Understanding hitter's approaches as a pitcher helps you kind of formulate your own plan," Keating said. "Understanding this is a pitch that is in the zone the majority of the time, this is a pitch that I get more swing and miss on, so I'll throw more of that with two strikes. I think that's really helpful coming from a hitter's perspective."

In his second season with the Renegades, Keating is part of a pitching staff that at one point featured six Yankees Top 30 prospects. Keating has relished backing up a star-studded rotation that has been consistently throwing deep into games.

"It's so much fun to watch," Keating said. "I've never seen or been part of a team that has a pitching staff as talented as we have right now. I think just appreciating that you are a part of something that is much greater than just one individual has been a blessing in of itself. And learning from those guys has been fantastic."

Keating was part of a bullpen that had the second-best ERA in minor league baseball during 2024. With a number of returners and key additions this season, the unit has picked up right where they left off. The bonds Keating has developed with his fellow bullpen arms mean so much.

"The people who are around you is everything, especially in the minor leagues," Keating said. "I've been so blessed with the teammates I've had and the guys I've gotten to spend time with in the bullpen. Not to mention the information that each person has and they can offer you. It's awesome to pick their brain. It's not all business out there. We have a really good time. I've been very fortunate."

Sensory Safe Suite

The Hudson Valley Renegades, the High-A affiliate of the New York Yankees, are pleased to partner with Curemark again this season on a Sensory Safe Suite at Heritage Financial Park. Suite No. 8 has been redesigned as a fun, accommodating and functional space to create a better game experience for families with children on the autism spectrum and with special needs.

The Curemark Sensory Safe Suite has features that provide a feeling of comfort and relaxation at Renegades games while maintaining all of the engaging and standard aspects of a game. This will result in an atmosphere that allows guests in the suite to decompress and absorb the game with family and friends away from the louder, more frantic environments that exist throughout the ballpark.

JAMES COOPER | MANAGER

Cooper, 42, begins his first season as the manager of the Renegades in 2025, and his third season overall as a minor league manager in the Yankees organization. He spent the 2024 season as the skipper for the Single-A Tampa Tarpons of the Florida State League, and managed the FCL Yankees in 2023, where he was named Florida Complex League Manager of the Year. Under his guidance, the Tarpons led the FSL in Stolen Bases (242) ranked second in AVG (.239), Hits (982) and Doubles (204), and fourth in OPS (.701). That came on the heels of his FCL team pacing its league in runs, hits, triples, RBIs, AVG, OBP, SLG and OPS in 2023.

Before managing in the Yankees system he was a defensive coach for one season with the FCL Yankees, where he won the FCL Championship in 2022 as part of a coaching staff that featured 2023 Renegades manager Sergio Santos, current Yankees Assistant Pitching Coach Preston Claiborne, and 2024 Renegades hitting coach Rick Guarno.

Before joining the Yankees, Cooper previously served as the head baseball coach at Grambling State University for 12 seasons from 2010 through 2021. He led the Tigers to the 2010 Southwestern Athletic Conference championship, and was named SWAC Head Coach of the Year in 2010 and 2017. He led the team to the SWAC Tournament 10 of the 11 years it was held in his tenure, and finished in the top two teams in the SWAC West Division in each of his final five full seasons at the helm.

Code of Conduct

In order to provide a welcoming experience for all, the Hudson Valley Renegades have implemented a Fan Code of Conduct. Out of respect for fellow guests, players, coaches, and ballpark staff, all guests are prohibited from...

- Trespassing on the playing field at any time
- Interfering with baseballs that are in play
- Throwing or tossing objects
- Using foul, obscene or derogatory language (see below) or gestures
- Misusing or overconsuming alcohol, including underage consumption
- Behaving in a manner that is disruptive, unruly, or abusive
- Accessing areas of the ballpark without a proper ticket, pass, or credential
- Misusing tickets, passes, or credentials in any way
- Bringing prohibited items into the ballpark

Derogatory language is defined as offensive language concerning a person's race, ethnicity, gender, religion, disability, age, sexual orientation, or national origin. Anyone using such language is subject to automatic ejection from the ballpark.

Violations of the Fan Code of Conduct will not be tolerated and may lead to ejection from the ballpark, a ban on attending future games, or other consequences. Guests who are found to have used derogatory language will be ejected from the ballpark.

Guests are encouraged to report violations of the Fan Code of Conduct to the nearest ballpark staff member. This can be done in person, at the nearest Quest Services location, or directly with Ballpark Security.
