SCHWELL NIGHT

After recovering from Tommy John surgery shortly after being drafted in the second round (59th overall) by Atlanta in 2021, Schwellenbach made his pro debut with the Single-A Augusta GreenJackets in early 2023. In his second start, he struck out six over 6.1 scoreless innings, showcasing the control and swing-and-miss stuff that defined his minor-league climb.

Over stints with Augusta and later High-A Rome, he posted a combined 2.49 ERA in 65 innings with 55 strikeouts-earning a spot in the 2023 All-Star Futures Game before moving up to Double-A Mississippi.

Promoted to Atlanta's 40-man roster on May 29, 2024, Schwellenbach made his MLB debut that evening, going 5 innings with 5 strikeouts and 3 earned runs against Washington. In 2025, he emerged as a reliable starter: by mid-June he had worked 96<sup>2</sup>/<sub>3</sub> innings with a 3.26 ERA and 92 Ks.

Most notably, on June 11 he delivered his first career complete game, allowing just two runs while striking out nine in a 6-2 win over Milwaukee-a performance that underscored his growing command and poise under pressure.

Spending just over a season in Augusta before ascending through the Braves' system, Schwellenbach's mix of control, strikeout ability, and competitiveness has turned a promising prospect into a key MLB rotation piece.

Join us Friday, July 11th when we give away a Spencer Schwellenbach Bobblehead to the first 1,000 fans through the gates, all thanks to Bridgestone!

MAGICAL FIRST HALF ENDS ONE GAME SHORT OF PLAYOFFS

The GreenJackets posted the best record of any team in the Braves' organization in the first half of the season, but fell one win shy of claiming their first playoff berth since 2019.

The 2025 season began with a large amount of optimism, as the roster featured a strong mix of returning players and young newcomers with a hunger to succeed. The return of manager Wynston Sawyer and pitching coach Elvin Nina gave another reason for confidence, and both men spoke strongly about the belief that improvements were on the horizon after 2024's last place finish.

The coaches' assessment rang true, as it was clear from the first weekend of the season that this team has something special about them. The Jackets took two of three against the eventual division champion Columbia Fireflies, culminating with a walk-off home run on Sunday night from Eric Hartman in just his third professional game.

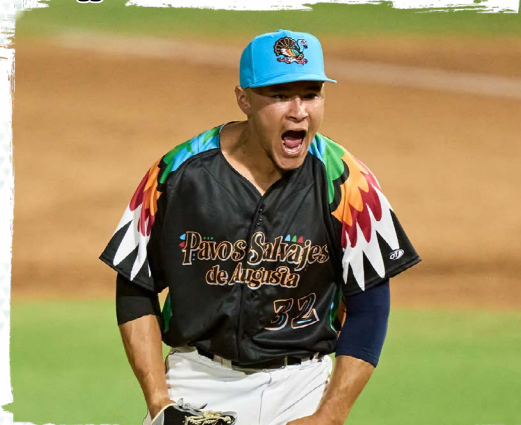

Hartman's walk-off would be the first of five in the season's first half, as the young crew showed cohesiveness and camaraderie immediately and played hard to the last out game after game. Newcomers like Hartman and Owen Carey immediately slotted into high-impact roles, while returners such as John Gil and Isaiah Drake flashed visible improvements under the guidance of Sawyer and new co-hitting coaches Garrett Wilkinson and Ruben Gotay.

As has been the case every year since Augusta began its affiliation with Atlanta, the pitching was full of powerful arms, a number of which have already been promoted to High-A Rome or AA Columbus. Starters like Brett Sears and Luke Sinnard began their pro careers with high levels of execution that saw them promoted quickly, while relievers like Jacob Kroeger and Jacob Gomez built upon their brief debuts last summer for shutdown starts to 2025.

In a tightly contested Southern Division, the GreenJackets navigated a series of injuries and promotions to enter the final three games of the year just two games out of first place. Knowing they did not control their own destiny, Augusta still held up their end of the bargain, winning the first two contests of the week to gain a game on the Fireflies entering the half's final day.

The last game of the first half presented a simple equation: a win plus a Firefly loss equaled a playoff spot. In a game for the ages, Owen Hackman fired six perfect innings before the Lynchburg Hillcats tagged him for two runs in the 7th. Down to their final strike, the Jackets used an RBI single from Colin Burgess to tie the game, and a game-winning swing in extras from Isaiah Drake to keep hopes alive.

Those playoff dreams would be short-lived, as the Fireflies won a rain-shortened game in Zebulon to claim the playoff spot in the first half, despite Augusta winning both series against Columbia so far this year. The team coming up short does leave a sour taste in the mouth, but improvements abound across the roster leave plenty of excitement for the second half, when the playoff quest reignites at SRP Park.
