RAYS REPORT—The Rays fell short of a postseason berth for the second straight year for the first time since a three-year drought from 2014-16...this comes on the heels of a franchise-record five consecutive postseason appearances from 2019-23...they remained in contention until being eliminated with an 11-7 loss on Sept. 19 vs. BOS...won a season-high seven consecutive games from Aug. 29-Sept. 4, their longest streak since June 3 (G2)-10, 2023 (7G), to draw within two games of an AL Wild Card spot, but went 6-16 over their final 22 games from Sept. 5 on, tying the Angels for the worst record in the AL over that span...their 77 wins tied 2014 for their second fewest in a 162-game season since becoming the Rays in 2008, more than only 2016 (68-94)...fell to fourth place with a 5-4, walk-off loss on July 12 at BOS, where they remained for the next 80 days through the end of the season...including off days and the All-Star break, they spent two days in first, 37 in second, 32 in third, 110 in fourth and four in fifth...dropped to eight games under .500 with a 13-4, season-ending loss on Sept. 28 at TOR, their most since entering play April 20, 2018 (5-13)...they did not fall more than five games below .500 at any point from 2019-24.

- ✦ The club's plus-31 run differential ranked seventh in the AL/14th in the majors...it was their best run differential in a losing season in franchise history, surpassing 2015 (+2)...it marked the second-best run differential over a 162-game season in which a club finished eight games under .500 or more, trailing the 1984 Pirates (+48). They were 47-36 on June 26 after an 11-3 win at Oriole Park capped an MLB-best 25-9 stretch (May 20-June 26)...it was Tampa Bay's best 34-game stretch since April 5-May 11, 2023 (25-9)...the Rays went 31-50 (.383) for the remainder of the season, tied with the Twins for the second-worst record in the majors in that span, ahead of only the Rockies (25-56/.309).

- ✦ The Rays went 20-32 (.385) vs. AL East opponents, the sixth-worst intra-division record in franchise history and their worst since 2006 (26-48/.351)...they drew within a half-game of the division lead three times from June 26-July 2, but never reclaimed first place, facing a double-digit deficit each day from July 31 on...the club posted a winning record outside the division (57-53) for the eighth time in the last nine seasons (2017-23, 2025) and 13th time in the last 16 seasons (2009-13, 2015, 2017-23, 2025).

SERIES-LY SPEAKING—The Rays went 23-26-3 in series play, their first time finishing with more losses than wins since going 17-28-7 in 2016...they went 16-8-2 across their first 26 series before going 7-18-1 over their final 26 sets...this includes an 0-6-1 skid to conclude the year, their most consecutive winless sets at any point in a season since an 0-6-2 run to end the 2006 campaign (Sept. 4-Oct. 1)...they posted a 13-11-2 mark in home series, including 3-6-1 in their last nine from June 30 on on the heels of a 10-5-1 start...the Rays went 10-14-1 as visitors thanks to road losing streaks of six (June 27-July 31) and four series (Sept. 9-end of season).

- ✦ In order to avoid Florida's rainy season, the Rays swapped home dates with the Angels and Twins, resulting in a 13-game homestand from April 8-20 (5-8) and a 12-game road trip from Aug. 4-17 (6-6)...they played 19 of their first 22 games at home, becoming the first team to do so since the 1970 Washington Senators (Stats Perform).
