In 2006 the Bourne Braves began playing at a brand new field located within the Barry J Motta Athletic Complex behind Upper Cape Technical High School. The new location allows for larger crowds and the Braves an opportunity to host CCBL All Star games but most importantly gives our fans a world class field to watch their beloved Braves.

On July 8th, 2007 the baseball field was officially dedicated in the name of George Doran, Sr., a longtime Sagamore Beach resident and avid baseball fan. Doran Park was officially commemorated with a sign unveiling and on field dedication ceremony. Highlights of the day's festivities included George's grandson, Patrick, throwing out the first pitch along with his Dad, John, and Katherine Doherty, George's eldest great-grandchild, singing both the National Anthem and God Bless America. John Doran, son of George Sr., was the family member most instrumental in finding this way to celebrate his Dad's legacy.

In 2008 the Bourne Braves played their home games under the lights for the first time in Braves history. On June 11th, 2008 the Bourne Braves, the Cape Cod Baseball League, Upper Cape Technical High School, The Doran Family and many members of the community came out to celebrate the newly light Doran Park with a Lighting Ceremony. Former Bourne Brave and Boston Red Sox, Lou Merloni, was on hand to address the players are the privilege of playing in the Cape League and relay some stories of his time in Bourne. It was a truly memorable evening at the lights shone brightly at Doran Park for the first time.

THE GATEWAY TO CAPE COD!

The Town of Bourne is a medium-sized community at the gateway to Cape Cod - You must pass through the Town to get over the Cape Cod Canal and anywhere else on Cape Cod. Long used by the Pilgrims during the 1620's as a center for trading activities, Aptuxet Trading Post was built in 1627, and the area was settled as a part of the Town of Sandwich by 1640, before finally being incorporated as the Town of Bourne in 1884.

The Cape Cod Canal, operated by the Army Corps of Engineers, bisects the community, with both the Bourne and the Sagamore Bridges, as well as the Buzzards Bay Railroad Bridge, being the only means to cross the Canal, unless you're travelling by boat. The Canal is world renowned for its superb sport fishing, scenic vistas, relaxing bike rides & walking routes, and for carrying vessels of all sizes flying the flags of all nations.

Bourne Scenic Park, founded in 1951 and run by the independent Bourne Recreation Authority, is located beneath the Bourne Bridge along the Canal, and is a perfect location for those seeking to enjoy the Canal and its' many activities. Bourne has numerous quiet harbors and inlets for boating and swimming, and the fishing & shellfishing in the area is particularly enticing and considered some of the most diverse in Massachusetts.

Bourne is also home of the National Marine Life Center, an independent, non-profit, rehabilitation & release hospital for the treatment of stranded sea turtles and seals, with future plans to expand to treat dolphins, porpoises, and small whales. The Center has been steadily growing since treating its' first patient in the Summer of 2004, and is destined to become the primary care center and information hub on Cape Cod regarding marine animals and their environment.

It is a quiet community without the continual Summer tourist crush experienced by some of the other Cape communities. During the Summer, there are weekly Concerts In The Park, the July 4th Parade has proven quite popular, the annual Bourne Scallop Festival is held in September each year, bringing visitors from all across North America, and in December there's A Canal Christmas to help celebrate the Holiday Season.

IN OUR PARTNERSHIP WITH THE UPPER CAPE TECHNICAL HIGH SCHOOL & CAPE COD BASEBALL LEAGUE, THE FOLLOWING RULES MUST BE ADHERED TO AT DORAN PARK. THANK YOU!

WELCOME TO DORAN PARK!

QUINTESSENTIAL CAPE COD - BEACHES, ICE CREAM, LOBSTER & BOURNE BRAVES BASEBALL!

The Bourne Braves have made it to the final game of Cape League Championship 5 of the last 7 years! This consistent level success that our fans have become accustomed to does not happen would not happen without our dedicated Board of Directors and volunteers who work tirelessly throughout the off season to bring championship caliber baseball to Doran Park year after year!

Although the 2024 season did not end with the Braves raising the Arnold Mycock Championship trophy, the Braves were resilient on the field all season long and our franchise welcomed various community partners such as Bourne Youth Baseball, Big Brothers Big Sisters, and Keystone Place, to Doran Park. Our players also shared their talents and love for baseball by participating in various field days at our local schools, Boys & Girls Club, and summer camps, and by reading to our younger fans at story hours.

Thank you to our host families who open their homes to Braves players each and every season – there wouldn't be baseball at Doran Park without our dedicated host families!

Clearly the Major League stars of tomorrow are our boys of summer! Former Braves Shortstop and Cape League Champion & MVP Matt Shaw debuted for the Chicago Cubs this spring and we all look forward to watching former Bravo Pete Alonso crush home runs for the NY Mets. In fact, eighteen (18!) Bourne Braves alumni were on Opening Day rosters as MLB kicked off their season.

The upcoming MLB first-year player draft is sure to be another exciting one with several of our Cape League Champions drafted in the top rounds!

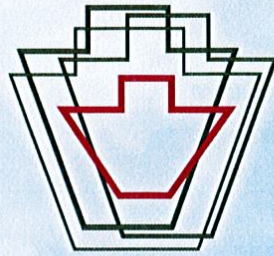

The Cape League provides a unique opportunity to not only the high-level college athletes that wear our jerseys, but also our talented college interns – It is my honor to share the tradition of Bourne Braves baseball with all our fans again this year!

I hope you and your family will join us at Doran Park for a game or two - 2025 is sure to be another exciting season!

Play Ball!

WELCOME TO ANOTHER EXCITING SUMMER OF BOURNE BRAVES BASEBALL!

It's my absolute pleasure to extend a warm welcome as we kick off what promises to be another incredible season at Doran Park. Each summer brings a new chapter to the long-standing tradition of Braves baseball, and we're thrilled to share it with the people who make it truly special—you, our loyal fans.

There's something timeless about a summer evening at the ballpark: the crack of the bat, kids chasing foul balls, the smell of the grill, and the sound of cheers echoing under the lights. That energy, that sense of community—it's something we're proud to be part of every single day. You're not just attending games—you're helping to shape a season these players will remember for the rest of their lives.

We're fortunate to welcome some of the top collegiate athletes in the country to wear the Bourne Braves uniform. They come here not just to compete, but to grow—on the field, in our community, and as teammates. They represent their schools, their hometowns, and most importantly, they represent you. And trust me, they take that responsibility seriously.

Behind the scenes, our coaching staff, host families, volunteers, and interns are working tirelessly to ensure everything runs smoothly. We're proud of what we've built, but we know it only thrives with your support—from your cheers in the stands to the countless ways you show up for this team and this town.

We're planning an exciting season with competitive baseball, community events, and opportunities for families and fans of all ages to get involved. Whether it's your first time visiting or your fiftieth, we can't wait to welcome you back to Doran Park.

Thank you for being part of the Braves family. Here's to a summer filled with great memories, strong community, and championship-caliber baseball.

Go Braves!

Matt Karas

General Manager, Bourne Braves

THOMAS S. CAHIR

SEPTEMBER 19, 1952 - MARCH 12, 2025

Tom's career in Massachusetts politics and transportation is quite illustrious. Elected to the Mass. House of Representatives in 1985, he represented the 3rd Barnstable District for 14 years. During his tenure, he held several leadership positions, with a significant focus on transportation issues. Notably, he served on the Joint Committee on Transportation throughout his legislative career and chaired it as well.

Not only was Tom a champion of Cape Cod through his many years of public service, he was also a champion of the Cape Cod Baseball League. He was involved in the League for decades and most recently sat on the Advisory Committee of the Cape Cod Baseball League Hall of Fame. Tom was often seen at Braves games as a life long resident of Bourne.

ROBERT "BOB" WILLIAM PARADY

JULY 21, 1947 - MARCH 9, 2025

Bob lived and devoted his entire life to his hometown of Bourne. His first job was as a lifeguard as a teenager, eventually working his way up to Beach Supervisor. His lifetime love of politics resulted in his first elected position to the town's Planning Board. In 1977, Bob was elected as Selectman-Assessor – at the time, Bourne was one of just ten communities in New England that had a full-time board of selectmen. He served six terms as Selectman-Assessor until 1995 when he resumed his full-time law practice.

Bob also served on the Cape Cod Joint Transportation Committee and the Cape Cod Regional Transit Authority Advisory Board. He concluded his political career by serving as the elected Town Moderator for 18 years. Bob helped the Braves many times over the years.

JEFFREY EVAN TRUNDY

MAY 6, 1950 - DECEMBER 20, 2024

Coach Trundy was the head coach and heartbeat of the Falmouth Commodores for over 26 years. He left a 30-year legacy of greatness in the Cape Cod Baseball League and with the Falmouth Commodores.

Baseball and coaching were in coach Trundy's blood. He was captain of the University of New Hampshire baseball team before moving on to earn his master's degree from the University of Colorado. It was in Colorado that Jeff spent some time as an assistant coach. He received the Mike Curran Award naming him Coach of the Year for the Cape League in 2004, 2016 and 2019.

In the off-season, Jeff was the head baseball coach at Frederick Gunn School, a prep school in Washington, Conn. In addition to coaching, he had also served as a part-time scout for the Toronto Blue Jays.

Coach Trundy was inducted into the Maine Baseball Hall of Fame in July 2013 and the Cape Cod Baseball League in 2024.

Known throughout the league and beyond as "Gentlemen Jeff", coach Trundy left an indelible mark on everyone he interacted with. He not only coached the young men who had the privilege of playing under his leadership but also took a personal interest in their lives, mentoring them to play with integrity.

SUPPORT THE BRAVES

The Bourne Braves are part of the renowned Cape Cod Baseball League, which is the #1 summer collegiate league in the country. It's an all-volunteer organization that works tirelessly year round to provide the community a summer full of free entertainment for the entire family. The Braves are a non-profit association who relies solely on the donations of private citizens and sponsorships from local businesses. As a member of the Bourne community the Braves sponsor school reading programs, youth clinics, local scholarships, local hospice programs and the local fire & police associations.

VOLUNTEER The Braves are always looking for people to join the Board of Directors or just volunteer to help at the games. What a better way to give back to your community than help field a baseball team! Contact Nicole Norkevicius if you are interested. nnorkevicius@yahoo.com

DONATE Did you know it takes over $150,000 to field the Braves every summer? As a non-profit we rely solely on the generous donations from individuals, past players, families and local businesses. Without this financial support from the Bourne community we simply could not run a franchise in the Cape League. Contact Jeff Yespy if you are interested. jayespy@yahoo.com

HOUSE A PLAYER Every year families all over Bourne open their homes to a potential Major League baseball player. It's an experience like no other. Contact Erin Gillooly at erinegillooly@gmail.com if you're interested.

HOST FAMILIES VISIT PLAYERS

One of the awesome traditions of being a host family is going to visit the players at school and watch them play. These families, who welcome the players into their homes during the season, get a chance to see their young athletes in action. It's a great way to build stronger connections and support. Plus, it's super fun and creates some unforgettable memories for everyone involved.

BOURNE BRAVES OUT FOR REVENGE AFTER FALLING SHORT IN 2024 CCBL CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES

By: Lyle Alenstein

The Bourne Braves were Cape Cod Baseball League champions in 2022. The squad brought home the hardware again in 2023.

2024 had the Braves pushing for the three-peat, but for the first time since 2021, a new team came out victorious, as the Braves fell to the Harwich Mariners 4-3 in Game 3 of the Championship Series.

"I would think most people don't want us here, but expect us to be here," field manager Scott Landers said following the defeat to the Mariners. "We did what we were supposed to do. We just fell a game short."

Landers said people might not want the Braves to be in the Championship Series game, but it's becoming a hard task to eliminate them from postseason contention. It's been four straight summers that the Braves have made it to the last dance, having also won the Championship Series a total of nine times all-time.

In 2021 the Braves lost to the Brewster Whitecaps — the following two seasons resulted in championships. After falling to the bunch from Harwich to end last summer, it leaves the question as to if Landers can bring his crew back to the promised land.

The field manager returns for his fourth campaign as the bench boss, with his first three resulting in championship game appearances. The head coach brings a wealth of experience to the ballpark, having been the head coach/strength and conditioning coordinator at SUNY Oswego since 2011.

Landers is accompanied by five assistants in veteran Kevin Curtin, and newcomers Jeff Limoncelli, Ed Blankmeyer, Anthony Barone and Alex Conrad.

Curtin, the pitching coach at Tufts University, will manage the arms in the bullpen for his fourth season. He joined the staff the same season as Landers, and was part of the 2022 and 2023 championship-winning teams, including managing the 2023 batch of pitchers who led the league in team ERA with 3.04.

Limoncelli will join the Braves' staff for his first season, having been a key figure in upstate New York high school baseball. He's notched over 400 wins in his career that's lasted over four decades, including guiding Horseheads High School to nine NYSPHSAA Section 4 championships.

Blankmeyer will also be spending his first season with

Braden Holcomb (Vanderbilt)

Bourne as a hitting coach, with his last summer gig being for the Brooklyn Cyclones of the New York-Penn League in 2022. He's the all-time winningest coach at St. John's, and has led the Red Storm to five Big East tournament championships.

Barone's first season with the Braves will have him as an assistant as well as the camp coordinator. He's a graduate student-athlete at SUNY Oswego, playing under Landers as a catcher, where he's posted a .264 batting average with 51 hits and 33 RBIs in his five-year career.

Conrad will round out the first-year staffers, and will join his SUNY Oswego teammate Barone as an assistant coach, working with the pitchers. The second graduate student-athlete for the Braves is a southpaw that has a 4.64 ERA and 91 strikeouts in his four seasons.

The Braves boast a roster of 48 players, including six returners in second baseman Cam Kozeal (Arkansas), outfielder Caden Sorrell (Texas A&M), pitchers Chase Meyer (West Virginia), Cameron Flukey (Coastal Carolina), Zach Konstantiovsky (Rutgers) and utility man Brayden Holcomb (Vanderbilt). The roster is made up of 27 pitchers, 11 infielders, seven outfielders and three catchers.

Seven conferences create the makeup of the roster, including the ACC, SEC, Big 12, Big Ten, Big East, Sun Belt and America East. The roster has several colleges with multiple players from each who will be suiting up for the Braves, headlined with four from Arkansas, followed by three from Rutgers, West Virginia, Wake Forest and Cincinnati, then two from Vanderbilt, Texas Tech, North Carolina, TCU, Louisville, St. John's, Texas A&M, Florida State and Clemson.

Notable bats to watch for the Braves are infielder Kade Lewis (Wake Forest), first baseman Ty Doucette (Rutgers) and shortstop Ryan Cooney (Oregon).

Lewis transferred to the Demon Deacons in 2025 after earning the Big East Freshman of the Year in 2024 for Butler. Through 47 games for Wake Forest, he boasts a .420 batting average, 71 hits, 52 RBIs, 41 runs and 11 home runs.

Doucette finished 2024 with a .321 batting average for the Scarlet Knights, and through 49 games in 2025, which he's started in all of them, he's once again hitting over .300 with a .335 batting average. So far in his sophomore campaign, he's totaled 68 hits, 48 runs, 46 RBIs and 10 home runs.

Cooney has stepped up in the Ducks' lineup in 2025, making massive strides from his freshman campaign the year prior. Through Oregon's 47 games, Cooney has started in every single one and has notched a .344 batting average, 52 hits, 41 RBIs, 37 runs, 26 walks and 13 stolen bases.

Arms to keep tabs on are Masson Brassfield (TCU), Nathan Taylor (Cincinnati) and John Abraham (Florida State).

Brassfield, the No. 54 overall prospect and No. 9 left-handed pitcher by Perfect Game in the 2024 recruiting class, has been an immediate impact player for TCU in his freshman year. He's garnered a 2.89 ERA with a 5-1 record through 14 appearances, totaling 51 strikeouts for the Horned Frogs.

In 2024 Taylor made the Big 12 All-Freshman Team as well as being an honorable mention for All-Big 12. He picked up right where he left off for his sophomore year with the Bearcats, boasting a 2.54 ERA with a 5-1 record and 70 strikeouts in 11 outings.

Abraham tallied a 5-2 record for the Seminoles in 2024, and he's kept that some consistency in 2025, currently holding a 3-0 record. Through two years at Florida State, he's appeared in 40 games and has dialed up 73 strikeouts.

It's never an easy task to make a championship appearance, but the Braves have made the Championship Series the last three years. Yet, last season it didn't end the way the squad wanted to with a loss to Harwich, but the Braves will be out for revenge this upcoming year as they fight for their third championship in four years — starting with its 2025 opener at 5:30 p.m., June 14, against none other than Harwich.

LANDERS LIFTS BRAVES TO CHAMPIONSHIP HEIGHTS DURING HIS TENURE

By: Wesley Sykes, Bourne Braves Public Relations Chair

When the final out was recorded for the 2021 Cape Cod Baseball League season and the Brewster Whitecaps secured a championship, the Bourne Braves' history was staring them in the face. The organization had lost in the finals three times since the turn of the century, though breaking through with its first title in 2009.

But while history repeated itself by watching their opponents celebrate a title, the Braves were, unbeknownst to them then, also watching their future field manager in then-Brewster pitching coach Scott Landers.

"We watched him against us in the final [in 2021]. He seemed like someone who really had his finger on the pulse with the pitching. And they shut us down big time," former Braves general manager Darin Weeks said. "It was like chess versus checkers with the coaching staff. [Brewster] just had all the answers to the test. They were prepared."

Following the 2021 season, long-time field manager Harvey Shapiro surprisingly resigned, creating a coveted Cape League coaching position. Former pitching coach Josh McDonald recommended Landers to the Braves Board of Directors, and he was one of six candidates to interview.

During the interview process, Landers was struck by the team's dedication to the community and family-first approach. The Braves were struck by his recruiting prowess, Power 5 conference connections, and relentlessly dogged style of play.

"One of the key things he brought up from day one was his family and wanting to have the ability to have his kids and family part of the franchise, which we certainly welcomed. That's what the Cape [League] is all about," Braves president Nicole Norkevicius said. "But his networking connections across the SEC and the ACC really stood out."

"You never want to leave your family at home for eight to 10 weeks. And so when [my kids] can have that experience at such a young age and being around those players, and I think it helps them grow as little kids and as individuals, but it gives them an experience that'll last forever," Landers added.

The family-friendly confines of Doran Park proved to be the perfect incubator of prosperity for Landers and the Braves. Much like he did a SUNY-Oswego, Landers found immediate success in Bourne, winning back-to-back Cape League championships in 2022 and 2023 while coming a game short of a three-peat in 2024. This is the story of how Landers turned the Braves into a perennial title contender in short order.

From Oswego to the Cape

A native of upstate New York, Landers took over the head coaching duties at SUNY-Oswego after assistant coaching stints at Le Moyne College and SUNY-Cortland, and quickly found success. He led the Lancers to six straight NCAA Championship appearances (2015-2021) and made back-to-back NCAA Division III College World Series appearances in 2017 and 2018. With a career winning percentage of .659 (328-170), Landers' approach to the game provided immediate dividends.

"You have to have the ability to execute and score runs in different ways. You have to be able to execute and create runs [on offense]. And on the pitching side, we just don't want to walk guys. We want to attack them and put guys away," Landers said. "We want to recruit athletes."

That style of play was on display during the 2024 Cape League postseason. In a one-game playoff on the road against top-seeded Hyannis, centerfielder Chris Stanfield (LSU) launched a 349-foot go-ahead homer in the top of the fourth. In his next at-bat, with a runner on third, Stanfield laid down an RBI bunt single to put the game out of reach for Bourne.

While everyone loves the long ball, at the cavernous Doran Park, home runs are harder to come by. And Landers looks to build his teams that can manufacture runs instead of relying on the big flies. But success breeds interest even in the absence of power at the plate.

"I think, ultimately, these guys are showcasing themselves, and the more you win and the more success you have, the better off they are, the better they're showcasing for a college or a draft position," Landers said. "My message to them is this generation is all stats — not every single one of them, I'm generalizing right now — but a lot of it is stat-driven. A bunt base hit is the same as a single to left. A single to left and a stolen base, or a bunt single and a stolen base, is as good as a double. You fail a lot in this game. So any way that you can showcase your skills in different ways is a positive."

Unlike a lot of today's coaches, his baseball philosophy isn't dominated by advanced analytics and statistics, though Landers does 'play the percentages.' Instead, he subscribes more to baseball's unwritten rules and isn't afraid to buck those trends to put his team in a position to win. Like deploying a double-steal with runners on first and second with two outs.

"I really feel like some of baseball's rules, like making the third out at third base, go to the wayside for us a little bit. There are a lot more ways in college baseball than pro ball to score from third base. We may give up an out at third to end an inning, but I feel like the number of times we score doing that far outweighs that. Just the amount of passed balls and wild pitches compared to pro ball, and guys throwing it away or slow rollers in the five or six-hole [leads to more scoring opportunities]," he said.

Like a master poker player, when Landers knows his opponents know how the game should be played, he can break those traditional rules and make himself a wildcard.

"You just kind of play the odds and negate some of those rules that people might think, 'What are you doing?” he said. “But when other teams know you’re a threat to steal at any time, it puts a lot of pressure on the pitchers at this level to control the run game and get them out of focus with the hitter.”

Under Landers, the Braves have shown their need for speed, swiping a league-high 271 bags over the last three seasons. Aside from stolen bases, he also wants players who get on base, have plate discipline, can throw strikes and limit walks. And the stats back up that approach. His teams have finished first or second 11 times in on-base percentage, stolen bases, walks, team ERA, strikeouts, and walks issued in that time.

Leading Through Communication

When Bourne defeated the Firebirds in Orleans in Game 3 of the Cape League Finals in 2023, the organization knew the outcome before the Braves even took the field.

“It was like the game was already played,” Weeks said. “There was no question we were going to win. Even though it was one on the road and [Orleans] had beaten us the night before at home pretty good, but Scott was prepared.”

In front of 7,000 fans at Eldredge Park, despite falling behind 2-0, Bourne scored five unanswered runs to capture its second-straight Cape League championship. While Weeks spoke glowingly of his situational preparedness, Landers can also effectively communicate with players on an individual basis, that’s led to his success.

“He can deal with the younger kids, and he understands the nuances of the 21st-century college baseball player,” Weeks said. “He understands the transfer portal. He understands how to motivate kids. And he doesn’t manage a broad brush.”

Landers is known for pushing the right buttons to get the most out of players. One player may need a proverbial swift kick in the pants. Another may need a shoulder to lean on. And every player wants to be put in a position to succeed.

“I’m around college kids every day running my program at [SUNY-Oswego],” Landers said. “We don’t run it any differently in Bourne. And at the end of the day, I don’t think age has much to do with it. It’s all about the ability to relate to people.”

Braves vice president Jenabeth Ferguson put it another way. “He’s also a person who makes you want to follow him. He’s a natural leader.”

“I think the coaching staff is a big part of [players staying with the team],” Landers said. “I try to build a staff where we can have a good rapport with each other and the players. We’re all away from our homes, so there’s some camaraderie in that — kind of a foxhole mentality. Being in a foreign place and going through everything together.”

He added, “But it also speaks to the host families. If these kids are in a bad situation on an everyday basis, when they’re going back to these host families, then they’re going to be more likely to leave. Our host families have been awesome.” In a league where players change by the season and storylines shift with the tide, Scott Landers is building sustained success in Bourne that’s grounded in connection, communication, and a deep understanding of the game’s evolving nature. From the sting of coming up short in 2021 to becoming the standard others now chase, the Braves have redefined their identity under Landers’ leadership. His mix of old-school instincts and modern-day savvy has not only produced championships, but cultivated a culture where players thrive, the community unites, and winning is simply the byproduct.

BRAVES BASEBALL: A DYNASTY ON THE CANAL

By: Darin Weeks

Most towns on Cape Cod can trace their baseball history back several generations, but only Bourne can say that baseball was played in town before there was a town of Bourne. Considering the first recorded baseball game was held on Casino Field in 1865, nineteen years before Bourne was incorporated, it's clear that America's Pastime is part of the fabric and history of the town to this day.

Prior to 1884, Bourne was part of the larger town of Sandwich and like all its other villages, Bourne had its own ball field. The first game played within its borders was a July 4th match between Sandwich and Barnstable, played less than three months after President Abraham Lincoln was assassinated. Though the Cape League as we know it today was still in its nascent stages, the die was cast for a league and a Bourne team that has become an institution on Cape Cod.

The "Cape League" grew in the roaring twenties as an outgrowth of the Barnstable County Fair and was anchored by four original teams in Chatham, Hyannis, Falmouth, and Osterville. A team from Bourne was invited to participate, but chose not to due to financial problems. When the 1930's brought the Great Depression, the financial constraints of baseball on Cape Cod wreaked havoc on several teams. After a team from Provincetown dropped out half way through the 1933 season, Bourne fielded a squad to fill in and complete the season, finishing with a 1-25 record.

Although the thirties proved to be a tough time for those across the country, Bourne baseball began to show its first on-field successes. When the league moved in 1934 to limit its members to Barnstable County residents only, the path was cleared for Bourne to gain momentum on the diamond. The opening of the Bourne Bridge in June, 1935 would provide their fans an easier way to see them play.

The 1937 season is one that is still remembered as one of the greatest Cape League seasons to this day. That summer, four teams, Bourne, Falmouth, Orleans, and Harwich, staged a four-team duel for the league title that came down to the final weekend. The Bourne "Canalmen" seemed poised to win the league title before inclement weather forced several games to be played in a short period of time, stretching Bourne's pitching staff to the breaking point.

Alas, the Canalmen took the field against Barnstable on the season's final weekend with a chance to take the crown. Unfortunately for Bourne, Barnstable hurler Norm Merrill threw a 5-0 no hitter in front of 500 fans to clinch the title and cap the best finish in league history up to that point.

When the 1940s rolled around and with it the distant drums of war in Europe, the Cape League again struggled with financial problems, which ultimately was forced to shut its doors. The promised $3,000 funding from the county for the league fell through and soon after, the league chose to shut down and remained closed throughout World War II.

When the war came to a close in the late forties, the league started again under a new set of rules mandating that its players had to be residents or have summer homes on Cape Cod, a rule that would later set the foundation for one of the league's first powerhouses in Bourne.

By 1949, Bourne had 4 teams in the league: Bourne, Sagamore, Mass Maritime Academy, and a team from the Otis Air Force Base. Of those teams, it would be the Sagamore "Clouters" that would set itself apart from its neighbors and rivals in the league.

The Clouters were led by Manny Pena who would later become the league's umpire-in-chief. Pena and his Clouters became the class of the league in the 50s by manipulating the rule that players needed to be Cape Cod residents and recruited players from across the country. Though not all of its players were Cape residents, Sagamore found itself deeding pieces of non-descript land to imported players on the Cape, resulting in instant eligibility. One local player, Walter Stahura, Jr, a standout baseball and football player at Harvard was instrumental in luring many Ivy League players to the Cape League to play for Sagamore.

This creative recruiting strategy drew ire from across the Cape League, but nevertheless resulted in nine Upper-Cape Titles in 11 years and 4 "All-Cape" crowns. Led by such legends as future CCBL Hall of Famers Tello Tontini and Jack Sanford, the Clouters dominated the league for a decade. Also donning a Sagamore uniform was Harvard's Bill Cleary, a Crimson letterman in baseball and hockey who would later become the head coach of Harvard's 1989 NCAA Champion hockey team.

Unfortunately for Sagamore, all sports dynasties must come to an end and it was no different for the Clouters. The league caught on to Robello's recruiting strategy and in 1962, it abolished the rule that only Cape residents could play in the league. Without a restriction on the players, it didn't take long for the other teams to catch up to Sagamore. The team struggled through much of the sixties and once again, financial issues caused hardship on the Bourne franchises.

The Massachusetts Maritime team folded in 1962 and the Otis Air Force team was expelled from the league in 1964 after forfeiting the season due to a lack of players. The result was a merged Bourne-Sagamore team in 1965 that would be known once again as the Clouters, later changed to the Bourne Canalmen in 1967. The Canalmen were left as the only team in Bourne, playing their games at Keith Field and struggling to find wins despite featuring future NBC Sports analyst John Dockery on the roster.

By 1971, the Cape Cod Baseball League was certified by the NCAA as one of just nine sanctioned summer leagues and the modern era of the Cape League was born. League rules specified that players would be required to work on the Cape during the summer. Also, no more than four players from each college could be on the same Cape League team, a rule that still stands today.

In Bourne, the Canalmen struggled on and off the field. In 1971 and 1972, Bourne won a total of just 30 games while losing 50 and finished 7th both years. Off the field, the cost of fielding a team in the competitive Cape League became insurmountable and the decision was made to fold after the 1972 season. After playing the game off and on for the better part of a century, Cape League baseball in Bourne was dormant for the next sixteen years.

After a decade of discussion, by 1988 it was clear that the Cape Cod Baseball League had grown to a point where expansion from 8 teams to 10 seemed feasible. After considering proposals from towns such as Mashpee, Plymouth, and Sandwich, the league chose to award expansion franchises to Bourne and Brewster. By a 31-2 vote, the league approved Bourne to return to a league that it helped grow for most of the twentieth century.

With ten teams, the league split into its current two division league and the current playoff system was set up. The Bourne franchise, now the "Braves", started playing at Hendy Field at the Mass Maritime Academy in 1988 and finished fifth with a 12-29 record. The following year, the Braves finished first in the western division with a 24-17-3 record before falling to Hyannis in the playoffs.

In 1994, the Braves broke ground on a new ballpark at an abandoned baseball field on Trowbridge Road. After two years of renovations, paid for by raising money by selling parcels of the field for $5, the Braves began play in 1996 at Coady Field, a ballpark named after 1920's star player Kempton Coady. Over the next ten years, Coady Field would be the summer home for Braves' players such as Mark Mulder, Kevin Youkilis, Brandon Inge, and Mark Kotsay who would all go on to have successful careers in Major League Baseball.

Although Coady Field provided many cherished memories for fans of Bourne, it was clear that the Braves would ultimately need a new ballpark to call their own. While the Braves worked hard between the lines, the Bourne Athletic Association worked equally hard off the field to solidify the town's baseball future in a new home for the Braves. In 2006, the Braves' dream of a new home became reality as the team inaugurated a brand-new park at Upper Cape Tech School about a mile from Coady Field which was formally named Doran Park in 2007.

Before leaving Coady Field for good, the Braves gave their fans one more reason to celebrate in 2005 as Bourne played for the league championship. Despite coming up one game short of the title to Orleans, the Braves gave Coady Field a proper sendoff by winning a playoff game in front of more than 3,000 fans in the final Cape League game ever played at the park.

In the 19 years at Doran Park, the Braves have achieved an incredible level of success and fan support. After a division crown in 2007 and a trip to a one-game playoff vs. Falmouth in 2008, the Braves finally reached the top of the mountain in 2009.

Since then, the Braves have been perennial contenders and have emerged as the latest Cape League “dynasty” by winning back-to-back championships for the first time in team history as Bourne captured their third title with a thrilling championship vs. Orleans in 2023. 2024 saw the Braves reach the league championship series for the fourth straight year (the first time in CCBL modern history a franchise has accomplished that feat). For the first time in Doran Park history, the championship trophy was won at home, unfortunately, the visiting Harwich Mariners spoiled the dreams of a three-peat. As we enter 2025 the Braves will continue to be led by energetic field manager Scott Landers and his team of outstanding assistants looking for another banner to be raised at Doran Park.

A lot of baseball has been played on Cape Cod since that first game at Casino Field in 1865 and Bourne has had its share of great moments and outstanding players. Recent Bourne Braves alumni dot Major League baseball, including Mets’ star Pete Alonso, Giants shortstop Tyler Fitzgerald, Cardinals’ Alec Burleson among many others who proudly donned the Bourne jersey. As fans sit at beautiful Doran Park and watch the Braves play this season, they will do just as Bourne fans have done for over 100 years: sit back, watch America’s Pastime, and appreciate having the opportunity to spend a summer night on Cape Cod.
