

Commodores Field Coach Jarrod Saltalamacchia accepts position at the University of Miami

August 6, 2025, Falmouth, MA – The Falmouth Commodores Field Manager Jarrod Saltalamacchia (“Salty”) has accepted the Director of Program Development position at the University of Miami. Coach Saltalamacchia’s last day with the Commodores was on August 3.

Saltalamacchia’s coaching experience in Florida and with the Cape Cod Baseball League helped the Commodores through a transitional season. He brought in a new coaching staff, including Assistant Head Coach Beau McMillan, top-level collegiate players who benefited from his experience in the MLB, and new coaching technology. McMillan played in the MiLB and has several years of success coaching at the college level.

Coach Saltalamacchia indicated that, “I had a great season with the Commodores. While the win-loss record was not great, we sent the most players (8) to the Cape League All-Star Team, had 21 players drafted by the MLB, including 3 first-round picks, and Commodores’ player Maika Niu was honored as MVP of the entire Cape Cod Baseball League.” Coach Saltalamacchia continued, “I would like to have stayed with the team, but I was offered a major position with the University of Miami baseball coaching staff as Director of Program Development.”

Bob Curtis, President of the Commodores, stated that “Salty brought a high energy and dynamic atmosphere to Guv Fuller Field. The team had a record in sponsorship donations, record sales in merchandise, and a record number of full-week kids in the youth baseball clinic program.” Additionally, Bob said, “We are extremely grateful for the contributions that Coach Saltalamacchia brought to the Commodores this season. We wish him continued success at the University of Miami.”

Saltalamacchia’s post-MLB career objective has been to coach at the Division 1 collegiate level. He will be replacing Rob Cooper, who spent 10 years as head baseball coach at Penn State prior to joining the University of Miami. The position at the University of Miami will also allow Saltalamacchia to work closer to his home in Palm Beach, FL, where he lives with his wife and four daughters.

A new head coach for the Falmouth Commodores will be named in the coming weeks.
